Reds and Nazis Lock In Air Battles Over Azov Sea; Soviet Army Advances.

(By International News Service)

LONDON — Royal Air Force bombers and fighters roared over the English Channel for the seventh consecutive day today following up yesterday's record-breaking achievement, when more than 600 planes roamed for a thousand miles over Germany and occupied France to blast industrial and military objectives.

Military observers found two factors of especial interest in the reports of the gigantic non-stop raids:

1. One of the objectives during last night's assaults was "an important factory" in Ausburg, marking the first time that vital aircraft manufacturing center had been raided by the R. A. F. since August of 1940. The factory was said to be the Man works, producing Diesel engines for submarines, rather than the Messerschmidt airplane plant, as first supposed.

2. British fighter pilots and bomber gunners reported that the German Luftwaffe seemed reluctant to engage in extensive aerial combat. In a number of cases, raiding crews failed to encounter a single enemy plane.

Calais, Rouen and Cherbourg were numbered among the objectives in occupied France. Observers on the southwest English coast both heard and felt the detonations caused by the packages of destruction dropped from the British Boston bombers across the channel.

At Calais, the British flyers reported direct hits on a main railroad line. Ship yards, fuel tanks and a power station were blasted at Rouen.

SUB MISSING

Biggest Undersea Craft Lost Free French Report.

LONDON — (U.P.) — The Free French submarine Surcouf, the world's largest submarine, is considerably overdue and must be considered lost, Free French headquarters announced today.

The Surcouf was last reported at St. Pierre, when Vice Admiral Emile Muselier of the Free French navy seized the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, off the Newfoundland coast, from Vichy French officials a few months ago.

The Surcouf, of 2,880 tons, weighed more than most destroyers. It was 361 feet long and normally caried 150 men and officers.

Navy Men Save Worker Held Prisoner on Bay Bottom.

CAPE CHARLES, Va. —(AP)— Two navy divers rescued Bernard O. "Dick" Hamilton, a professional undersea worker, early today after he had been held prisoner for nine hours under mud, fallen piling and 20 feet of water.

Hamilton was trapped by a mud slide about 5 p. m. Friday as he worked at a depth of 20 feet during dredging operations at the Virginia Ferry company slip in the Pennsylvania Railroad terminal harbor.

Here are four views of Tokyo, capital of Japan, and one of the four Japanese cities attacked by enemy bombers (the Japs said they were American ships) yesterday. The picture at the top left shows why Tokyo—and all Japanese cities—are vunerable to bombing attacks. While the news of the attack came from Japanese sources alone, without confirmation from Washington, it said that raids were made on Yokohama, great Japanese port, Kobe, and Nagoya, big naval-industrial cities. Tokyo, with 7,000,000 population, is the third largest city in the world.

EX-MANSFIELDER MURDER VICTIM

Madeline Matthes, 25, Brutally Slain In Washington, Was Native of City.

Miss Madeline Matthes, 25-year-old member of Jehovah's Witnesses, who was brutally murdered in Washington Wednesday, was a former Mansfield girl and a number of relatives reside here, it was learned today.

Washington police said that Richard A. Wilhite, 17, confessed killing the girl, whose body was found in his mother's apartment. Miss Matthes had gone to the apartment in connection with her church work.

After dispatches Thursday stated that the victim had been tentatively identified as Madeline Matthes, Mansfield relatives of the girl sought to obtain confirmation of the identification by telegram but were unable to obtain definite word. Yesterday an uncle, S. S. Matthes, of 610 Russell road, went to the national capital to seek further information.

Washington police said today, according to wire service dispatches, that the girl had been definitely identified as Madeline Matthes. An autopsy showed there had been no assault, police reported. The youth was held for action by the grand jury.

Relatives here said Madeline Matthes was born in Mansfield, and left here as a small girl when her parents moved from the city. Her father, William H. Matthes, is a son of Mrs. Bertha Matthes, of 52 Wellington avenue, and a brother of S. S. Matthes. The brother in Washington is a department store official.

Four daughters of Mrs. Bertha Matthes—the Misses Amelia, Edith, Catherine, and Bertha Matthes, also reside in Mansfield at the home on Wellington avenue.

MUNCIE, Ind.—(AP)—Fourteen Ohio soldiers, injured in a train collision while en route from an induction station at Camp Perry, O., to Jefferson Barracks, Mo., were under observation today at the Fort Benjamin Harrison hospital. Capt. Paul Miller of the fort's public relations office said none of the soldiers was hurt seriously.

Describes Last Hours of Gallant Battle of Bataan

(Editor's Note: In the following colorful dispatch, Frank Hewlett, United Press correspondent describes the last hours of the battle of Bataan.)

By FRANK HEWLETT
(UP Staff Correspondent)

GENERAL M'ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia — The night of April 1 was the beginning of the end for the Bataan defenders.

But in the days intervening before the fall, every able bodied man in the peninsula and many who were not, fought with everything they had. They had no hope of victory, no hope of reinforcement.

The Japanese attacked day and night with dive bombers, high altitude bombers, artillery, and always with more and more men.

Every reserve man was in action. As a last resort, Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright ordered extra rations issued from his scanty store. The rations were waiting at the last defense line to which the men withdrew. The Japanese sensed the kill and they drove on relentlessly.

The Americans and Filipinos were outflanked on their eastern wing and they were thrown back along the main highway.

On the night of April 8th Wainwright had a conference with his commanders.

It was agreed that further re-

Community Fund Workers Hope to Close Drive Tonight.

Mansfield Community Fund campaign workers expected to wind up their week's drive for $25,000 today although final reports will not be tabulated until Tuesday to permit employes of various stores and industries to contribute from their pay envelopes today.

More than two-thirds of the goal had been raised yesterday when workers reported a total of $17,829 collected in the first five days of the drive, leaving a balance of $7,172 to be obtained by tonight.

The daily report luncheon was skipped today so that workers might concentrate on their prospects but division majors and captains were expected to report their progress to Fund headquarters this afternoon.

Final reports will be given at a luncheon meeting Tuesday at the Evergreens cafeteria at 11:45 a. m.

CITY TO GET DEFENSE FUND

Mansfield Expected to Share In $2,000,000 'Melon' Which Bricker Allows.

Mansfield is expected to receive a "cut" of a $2,000,000 "melon" to finance civilian defense expenses, as the result of action today by Gov. John W. Bricker following months of pressure by some cities in the state for distribution of state funds for this purpose.

Bricker ordered $2,000,000 in excess poor relief revenues distributed to local governments of the state to help meet civilian defense costs. The state defense council met in emergency session to act upon the governor's request for funds.

The largest allocation, $528,692, would go to Cuyahoga county (Cleveland). Officials of Cleveland were most vociferous in their demands upon Governor Bricker during recent months for state funds to finance civilian defense.

Mayor W. J. Locke of Mansfield has not participated in the demands by some municipal officials for these state funds. He took the position that state money was not necessary to pay the costs of civilian defense here, that the major expense for this purpose

Mansfield Civic Music association opened its membership campaign at headquarters in the Ohio Fuel Gas company at 68 Park avenue west today and began preparing its 245 campaign workers for the annual drive starting Monday by equipping them with prospect lists and the necessary campaign supplies.

Chester Porterfield, representative of Civic Music's New York office, reached the city yesterday to assist association officers and campaign workers in the drive that will be launched at a complimentary campaign workers' dinner Monday night in Grace Episcopal church.

He was on hand at headquarters today to aid Mrs. D. O. Meese, membership campaign chairman, and Mrs. Stanley Richardson, headquarters chairman, in distributing workers' supplies. It is essential that workers bring their supply kits to the dinner Monday night, Mrs. Meese announced, as their contents will be explained in detail at that time.

FLAMING CITY OF CEBU FALLS TO JAPANESE

U. S., Filipino Troops Resist Fiercely; Corregidor Guns Smash Bataan Roads.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Lieut. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright reported today that despite continuing fierce resistance by his outnumbered forces, the city of Cebu, second largest in the Philippines, has fallen to the enemy and is reported to be burning.

This was disclosed in a war department communique which also stated that the aerial bombardment and shelling of Corregidor is continuing, but that the defenders have blasted Jap-held roads and bridges on Bataan, disrupting enemy communications.

Fierce resistance also was reported on the important island of Panay, where the Japanese landed recently, apparently in an effort to "cash in" finally on the riches of the Philippines.

Reports from Cebu indicate that Cebu City is in enemy hands," the communique said. "The city is reported to be burning. Fierce fighting is continuing in that vicinity."

Cebu City is second in size to Manila and is located on the rich island bearing the same name approximately 350 miles southeast of Corregidor.

The island of Cebu was invaded last week by a Jap force of 12,000 troops supported by tanks, dive-bombers and naval guns from craft operating off-shore.

Despite the ninth consecutive day of air raids and artillery shelling of Corregidor, the army reported that little damage has been done to the fort's military installations.

Text of the war department's 197th communique, as of 9:30 a. m., EWT., follows:

"Philippine theater-aerial bombardment and shelling of Corregidor by enemy batteries continued

Japanese Reveal Attack Caught People In Streets of World's Third Largest City; Yokohama, Kobe, and Nagoya Feel Sting of Bombings.

(By United Press)

Japan announced today that Allied planes, taking the war to Japan for the first time, had bombed Tokyo, the world's third city, and the industrial and naval base cities of Yokohama, Kobe and Nagoya.

(Tokyo radio in a Chinese-language broadcast recorded by CBS in San Francisco, identified the planes as American.

("American airplanes raided Tokyo for the first time," the radio said.)

After hours in which it asserted first that no damage had been done and then that damage was slight, Tokyo admitted that incendiary bombs had caused fires at Nagoya and Kobe, two of Japan's greatest cities.

It was said that the Allied planes machine-gunned villages in the attack area.

The attacks extended over a 275-mile area of the south coast of Honshiu, the main Japanese island, along which all Japan's greatest cities are strung.

Tokyo had an air raid alarm period extending from shortly before noon to around 4 p. m.

The alarm was sounded throughout the Japanese island group from Hokkaido in the far north to Tohoku and Kyushu in the southwest.

Admission that the Allied planes had used incendiary bombs meant that Japan for the first time had been brought face to face with its deadliest peril—mass fires among the flimsily-built homes of wood and paper which form large parts of her cities.

Central defense headquarters at Tokyo said fires at Nagoya and Kobe had been brought under control by 4 p. m.

It said incendiary bombs had been dropped at six places "in the vicinity of" Nagoya and that three places at Kobe were hit with fire bombs.

Japan and all the world had known long before the war that every city in it was vulnerable to fire bomb attacks and that after the first enemy plane had flown over the country its people would never, so long as the war lasted, sleep another night feeling secure.

Tokyo asserted that nine Allied planes had been shot down by interceptor planes in the vicinity of crowded, fire-fearful Tokyo with its 7,000,000 people.

Broadcasts which spoke of thousands strolling the streets when the air raid alarm sounded, just before Allied planes began flying over Tokyo from all directions, indicated that the city was caught completely unaware.

Tokyo said that noon-day rush crowds kept on their way as did street cars and buses, thinking that it was a practice alarm.

Tokyo in its first reports of the raid said that heavy

Laval to Reveal Fate of France as Unrest Seethes

(By Associated Press)

BULLETIN

VICHY, France—(U.P.)—Pierre Laval completed his collaboration-with-Germany cabinet today and assumed power as chief of the government, foreign minister, interior minister and information minister. Thus Laval took control not only of foreign affairs and interior affairs, including the national police system, but of all propaganda.

Crafty, pro-German Pierre Laval was expected to disclose the fate of France today amid a highly explosive situation pointed by reports of widespread hatred against Laval among the French population.

Hailed in the official Vichy press as a "fervent patriot," Laval was to announce his new collaborationist cabinet during the day, and with it a pronouncement of French foreign policy which was awailed with ominous misgivings in Allied capitals.

Washington advices said Laval's opponents in France were already planning to unseat him, and that the new premier was prepared to go the limit in forcing the conquered nation to collaborate with the Nazis.

Simultaneously, a new belligerency in the French armed forces was reflected in reports from Casablanca, French Morocco, stating that French fighter planes took to the air yesterday when a British bomber circled over the naval base and airport and then flew off.

French officials said the twin-motored RAF bomber disappeared as soon as French pursuit planes rose to meet it.

Informed quarters in Washington said Laval might be expected to launch a military campaign to wrest Syria or French Equatorial Africa from Gen. Charles de Gaulle's Free French forces.

By this means, it was said, Laval hoped to divert Allied strength from other fronts to defend these strategic areas and thus give Adolf Hitler almost as much help

What's Ahead for Wartime Grads?

Out into a world at war will go more than 900 graduates from Mansfield and Richland and Morrow county schools within a short time. What they face from the point of view of a man close to the nation's labor and production problem and how they themselves feel about the future is told in two fascinating stories in the Sunday edition.

For many Mansfield youngsters the coming of balmy weather means the start of the fourth summer season of the Children's theater. Pictures and text tell you what the theater is, how it started, and how it has progressed.

Camera and reporter have investigated just how the circulation department sees that copies of The News-Journal get to men in the nation's armed forces. They inform you about it in the Sunday edition in a feature that digs up some interesting behind-the-scenes data on where the papers go and how the incessant changing of addresses is handled.

(No. 1—The Wm. Morris Office)

THERE is a fable among Times Square story-tellers about a safari of white traders who found themselves on the outskirts of a native village deep in Africa. Approaching, they observed that the local tribe was clustered in an ominously eager circle around a lone white man who was juggling eight cocoanuts and balancing a crude spear on the tip of his nose. When he had finished the traders rushed over to him with their guns drawn protectively.

Kilgallen

"Good thing you know parlor trucks, mister," they told the fellow. "These natives usually kill strange white men on sight. When did they capture you?"

"Nobody captured me," the man replied indignantly. "I was booked here by the William Morris office."

This ancient bit of apochrypha illustrates one of the most impressive aspects of the William Morris agency: the way it gets around.

The William Morris name has been associated with show business since 1898 when William Morris, sr., opened a tiny, one-room office on 14th street. The agency since then has moved and grown. Its Eastern headquarters now occupy an entire floor in Radio City, and branch offices almost as impressive are situated in Chicago, Cleveland and on the Coast.

The calling list in the Manhattan office on an average afternoon might (and often does) include Eddie Cantor, George Jessel, Sophie Tucker, Ray Bolger, Danny Kaye, Jean Sablon, Olsen and Johnson and Gypsy Rose Lee. In the California foyer much the same kind of procession wends its way—Mickey Rooney, Linda Darnell, John Barrymore, Betty Field, Dick Powell and Burns and Allen.

Although the phrase "nothing today" is probably repeated as often in the William Morris cubicles as it is in any agency or producer's office on Broadway, the Morris office has done a lot of developing of new talent, too. The boys over there like to recall that the Morris theater department helped a Broadway assistant director named Garson Kanin to land his first film contract; that the band department nursed Vaughn Monroe to the top of the swing heap; that the radio division took a slight Broadway comedy, "What a Life," and made it the most successful show of its kind in radio, "The Aldrich Family."

Mae West was launched on her highly profitable film career by the brilliant suggestion of a Morris representative handling acting talent. A call came from the coast for a "Mae West type" to appear in an imminent screen work.

"I've got just the gal for you," the agent said promptly. "Mae West!"

An early Morris triumph was the importation of Harry Lauder, the Scotch comedian who was a national idol over two decades ago. Morris also introduced to America's audiences a funny little man with a battered derby hat and a cane, whose name was Charlie Chaplin. Will Rogers was a Morris client, and old-timers at the agency recall a morning on which Will rode his horse up the steps of the old 28th street office and right into the boss' office, to wish him a happy birthday.

Some Morris bookings are as far-flung as the safari anecdote mentioned above would indicate. One afternoon about a year ago a representative of the agency phoned Leo Reisman, the bandleader, and told him a date had been set for the orchestra in Guatemala, some 3,000 miles off 52nd street.

"Swell," said Leo. "I'll start buying some tropical clothes."

"You won't need them," the agent said. "It's a one-night stand!"

Actually, it was the Guatemala fair, and Reisman was to play a command performance for President Ubico—but to the Morris office it was still a one-night stand.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—The girl wasn't doing so well. She sat at the grand piano, looking pretty, blue-eyed, demure, and worried. It was all her fault, obviously. They couldn't get the scene right.

"Look honey," said Lew Seiler, "you're not supposed to be a grand opera star. Just a woman singing, just singing, fooling around at the piano."

"Oh," said Irene Manning. "I see."

So she tried again. Raised her nice lyric soprano and sang "Body and Soul" like a light opera star, which she was before she came to movies, only then she was Hope Manning, not Irene.

"Bad," said the director "I mean, it's too good You sing too good. You aren't supposed to be a singer."

"I see," said Miss Manning, and then she sang "Body and Soul" just a little better than before. "Escape Into Crime" wasn't getting anywhere—fast.

"We'll have to get a singer and dub it in," said Harold Winston. He's the dialogue director. "Anybody know a singer who's not so hot, that can carry a tune?"

You and I could have mentioned a few, but just then, somebody was smitten with genius. "Don't let her sing at all," said the smittee, "I mean, she can just hum. You know, da-de-da, then a word or so, and da-de-da. . . ."

It was wonderful. It worked. Miss Manning sings beautifully, but her hum is just—er, ho-hum. "Nice," beamed Lew Seiler. . . .

On the set of "My Gal Sal" Rita Hayworth had vocal problems of another kind. Rita is a looker, and she can dance with anybody, but she isn't looking for immortality as a singer. Her studio, cognizant of the fact, is not asking her to sing the several tunes she will seem to sing on the screen. So Rita has been practicing lip movements to synchronize with the sound track of Nan Wynn's rich voice in "Banks of the Wabash."

Irving Cummings is directing this story of the American songwriter, Paul Dresser, and his times. And there's a story there. Mrs. Cummings and Mrs. Casino, Rita's mother, were school friends back in Washington, D. C. The Cummingses and the Casinos kept it up. When Rita was born in New York, Irving Cummings was among the first to see her at the hospital. But this is the first time he has directed her in a movie.

And he thinks she is going to surprise a lot of folks who like her b[u]t are afraid she can't act.

The film capital continues to hold its place among the big three with Washington, D. C. and New York as the interest centers of the nation. In the last 14 months, nine books have been published about Hollywood, its people and its activities.

RECORDS OF BUC REFLECT SLUMP IN EMPLOYMENT

Unemployment Benefit Payments Doubled Over First Quarter of 1941.

Reflecting increased unemployment during the change-over period from domestic to war production, unemployment compensation paid idle workers in the Mansfield area for the first quarter of this year more than doubled payments in the same period of 1941, the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation reported today.

Payments for the quarter ending March 31 in Richland and Morrow counties amounted to $159,099. They totaled $74,943 in the corresponding period of 1941. The two-county area is served by the Mansfield office. Benefits were paid to 809 persons in the Mansfield area in March.

The industrial picture improved rapidly last month, however, with the Mansfield office of the Ohio Employment service placing 230 workers in jobs, 38.6 per cent more than in February.

Weekly benefit payments for Richland and Morrow counties for the first quarter of this year averaged $12.98 as compared with a state average of $12.77. The higher average here, it was pointed out, shows that workers in this area are better paid when they are on the job.

Employment conditions showed a general improvement in the state last month. New claims for compensation dropped to 19,164 from 23,095 in February, a 17 per cent reduction. Averge number of benefit payments per week in March was 40,625 in Ohio as compared with 42,584 in February.

To provide more service for workers who want to get into defense jobs and for selective service registrants who need help in filling out their occupational questionnaires, the Mansfield office of the Ohio Employment service will remain open until 9 p. m. nightly, beginning Monday, C. W. Handley, office manager, announced today. The office will open at 8 a. m. The hours have been from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Handley said the office is increasing its efforts to place workers in essential war production jobs.

LAUNCH DRIVE ON DELINQUENTS

Police Prepare 15 Warrants For Motorists Failing to Pay Traffic Fines.

Mansfield motorists who have piled up long lists of parking meter and traffic violations have been warned to pay their fines voluntarily several times during the past year. Now, Mansfield police are going to "crack down" on drivers who have ignored the warnings and are going to have them brought into court.

City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner said today that he was preparing affidavits for the arrest of at least 15 of the offenders and that "this is only the beginning."

"The police department has warned these motorists repeatedly that they must pay their fines," said Wagner, "but the warnings have been ignored. Now we intend to take some action."

Wagner said that the drivers arrested would not only be forced to pay the original fines of $1 or $2 for their violations but would also be assessed court costs. In most cases, he said, these costs amount to about $6.30.

Mrs. Emmet McIntyre, police records clerk, has been sending out notices to motorists delinquent in the payment of parking meter or traffic violations to remind them that they are liable to arrest.

BRIEF ILLNESS ENDS IN DEATH

BELLVILLE — Mrs. Katherine Leedy, 74, of southwest of here died in Mansfield General hospital Friday following a brief illness.

CHEMIST DECLARES VITAMINS CAN PRODUCE SUPER-FIGHTERS

(By United Press)

CHICAGO—Dr. Harry Holmes, president of the American Chemical society, believes that vitamins can win the war by producing a fighting navy that seldom gets "seasick," bomber pilots who can locate night targets, and soldiers who bloom with health.

It's just a matter of learning the A-B-C's, Dr. Holmes, head of Oberlin university's department of chemistry, told the Chicago section of the society last night.

"Vitamin A is an aid to night flying, aiding vision in quickly locating targets," he said. The Royal Air Force already is using it, he said, by adding carrots and halibut liver oil to pilots' diets.

"Vitamin B would be a great boon to the navy as it would curb seasickness," he said. "I would like to see the navy give vitamin B a thorough trial. It has a definite re-enforcing effect on the nerves and it greatly increases the ability to do physical work. It is equally important to fighter and defense factory worker."

Vitamin C is an asset to "buoyant health" which will help prevent scourges of disease that have been more deadly than bullets in past wars, Holmes said.

"Canned tomatoes, containing vitamin C, did wonders in warding off near-scurvy in the last war," but this time Dr. Holmes would advise "raw cabbage, in the form of cole slaw as the richest and cheapest source of vitamin C for camp diet."

DIES AT HOME

C. R. Ransom, 56, Succumbs After Heart Attack.

Clarence R. Ransom, 56, a resident of Mansfield for the last two years, died yesterday at his home, 148 East Third street, following a heart attack.

Mr. Ransom was born in Mt. Vernon on August 18, 1885, and lived there the greater part of his life.

"I'll bet the chief will be surprised to find me, a rookie, the first one down and ready to ride!"

Up and Down THE STREET

Tony Moritz, courthouse custodian, thinks war production is a lot more important than getting the courthouse lawn back in condition, so he's about decided to let the lawn get along as best it can this summer. Usually luxuriant by this time of year, the section of lawn south of the county building is spotted and needs fertilizing and re-seeding. Moritz said workers to do the job are hard to find and "anyway, they're needed more on defense jobs."

Members of the Ganges Grange at Ganges wonder if someone is trying to sabotage their roadside beautification project. Rencently grange members, headed by Mrs. Harry Light and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mellick, took over the task of beautifying a triangular plot of land formed by the intersection of state and county roads at Ganges. State and county trucks helped haul in soil for the work and grass was planted. But motorists have been driving through the plot, Mrs. Light reports. She said her committee fears that it will not be able to go ahead with a plan to plant shrubs unless the drivers cooperate.

Dog Warden William Miller is convinced that some of the animals he picks up can identify him before he goes into action. Called to Plymouth yesterday to get a dog that had been left at a home when the family moved away, Miller and William E. O'Donnell, who went along to help, arrived in time to see the animal seeking a hiding place under the front porch. The dog crawled back so far under the porch and the space was so small that it couldn't get out. Miller and O Donnell had to remove some of the bricks from the foundation to release it.

Members of the Richland county blind school who have been roller skating regularly each Thursday afternoon at their weekly recreation session at the Salvation Army have a new treat in store for them next week. Manager H. L. Dennis of the Coliseum has invited the group to be his guests and has promised to teach them some fancy steps on the Coliseum floor. The blind school has been practicing skating for several months with equipment furnished through the courtesy of the Coliseum management.

TAKEN BY DEATH

Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney Dies After Heart Attack.

The death in a New York hospital early today of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, one of America's wealthiest women, recalled to Richland countians the day last June when she visited Plymouth unexpectedly to attend the wedding of her son, Cornelius Vanderbilt "Sonny" Whitney, and the former Miss Eleanor Searle of Plymouth.

Mrs. Whitney, who was the former Gertrude Vanderbilt, succumbed to a heart attack. She was 65. Her health began to fail soon after the death of her brother, Gen. Cornelius Vanderbilt, a month ago.

Mrs. Whitney was projected into newspaper headlines several years ago when she waged a long court battle with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, over the custody of the now-married Gloria Vanderbilt de Cicco. Gloria was her niece.

DEATH TAKES EX-RAILROADER

Joseph J. Bundchu Dies on 72nd Birthday Anniversary.

WILLARD—Joseph J. Bundchu, a retired railroader, who was to have observed his 72nd birthday with his twin brother today, died in Municipal hospital here this morning following a lingering illness.

Bundchu retired five years ago after completing 50 years service with the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

Survivors include his widow, Cora May; two daughters, Mrs. Charles Ansel, and Mrs. Clayton Deeber, and four grandchildren, and his twin brother, Frank, all of Willard.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m., Monday at the home. Rev. Paul W. Sharp, pastor of the United Brethren church will officiate. Burial will be in Greenlawn cemetery.

SUES UNION.

WARREN —(AP)— In a suit asking $50,000 damages Thomas G. Howells of Girard charges that AFL Plumbers and Steamfitters Union, Local 225, and Business Agent Conrad Delvaux denied him union membership after he paid a $150 initiation fee and nearly four months' dues.

POLICE OFFICER REMOVED HOME

Patrolman Conrady, Hurt In Mishap Leaves Hospital.

Patrolman Arthur Conrady, who was injured early Tuesday morning when an automobile crashed into the rear of his police motorcycle while he was waiting for a traffic light to change at the intersection of Park avenue west and Marion avenue, was released from General hospital yesterday afternoon.

Conrady suffered a back injury and numerous cuts and bruises. It was feared at first that he had received a fractured vertebra but X-rays showed that although his back was injured, there had been no fracture.

Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals said that Conrady had recovered sufficiently to be removed to his home at 71 Hedges street but that he did not know when the patrolman would be able to get back on traffic duty.

RADIOS SILENT

Alert Puts Stations Off Air In Southern California.

LOS ANGELES—(INS)—A yellow alert in the San Diego area silenced Southern California radio stations for 38 minutes last night and early today.

The stations were off the air, by order of the fourth interceptor command, from 11:27 p. m. to 12:05 a. m. The alert extended from Oceanside south to the Mexican border and was the result of "unidentified planes later identified as friendly."

CHINESE ARE JUBILANT AT JAPAN RAIDS

Hail Fulfillment of Pledge by Americans; Cite Blow To Enemy Morale.

(By International News Service)

CHUNGKING — Chungking, capital of Free China, today was a city beside itself.

From Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek to the most humble coolie, the people of Chungking shared the wildest jubilation imaginable when it became known that American bombers had blasted Tokyo and the other major cities of Japan.

Chungking has taken a savage and unmerciful pounding from the skies for three years—taking it because there was nothing the Chinese could do, lacking adequate fighter planes and anti-aircraft defenses.

Today Chungking learned that Tokyo has received for the first time a sample of what it has been dishing out. And the people of Chungking, who have never claimed to be super-men, waited to see how the self-dubbed super-men of Japan would react.

Information Minister Wang Shih Cheih summed up the general opinion as follows:

"It is regarded as the most significant development, marking the beginning of fulfillment of a pledge by the American government that the United Nations will soon bring the war to Japan proper.

"Besides the material damage caused by the bombings, the moral effect must be immense on the Japanese people who thus far have been kept in gross ignorance by militarists of Japan's vulnerability, and of the real strength of the United Nations."

Chungking regards the bombing of Japan as the greatest morale-lifting event since the outbreak of war. It has fulfilled the often expressed Chinese desire for retaliatory bombings of Tokyo to avenge the ruthless Japanese "target practice" against undefended Chinese cities.

It is believed also that news of the bombing of Tokyo will do more for the morale of the Chinese troops in Burma than two divisions of fresh men.

In Chungking today, the words of U. S. Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, first American ever to command major Chinese forces, were deep in the hearts of every Chinese.

It was just a few weeks ago that Stilwell promised:

"We will not be satisfied until American and Chinese troops march along the streets of Tokyo together."

Kiwanian Hubbies Put on Spot With Mystery Gardenias

Some 70-odd members of the Mansfield Kiwanis club breathed easier today, after clearing-up a big gardenia mystery.

The Kiwanians were puzzled and a little disturbed late yesterday afternoon to find their wives awaiting with open arms to welcome them and thank them for the beautiful gardenias.

Then men hadn't ordered any flowers and couldn't understand it, especially when their wives showed them cards reading, "To My Honey."

Accurate figures were not obtainable, but when notes were compared later it developed that some of the 70 admitted they hadn't sent the flowers and knew nothing about them. Others, however, modestly admitted they had sent 'em, and they accepted their wives' thanks with "the "Shucks, I'm glad you like 'em" attitude.

A number of club members asked the florist in the case, C. L. Kafer, what it was all about. He was forced to tell them that the flowers had been ordered by the committee for Kiwanis Ladies Night. The wives wore the flowers at the Ladies Night party last evening in the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

throughout April 17, though with somewhat decreased intensity. Little damage was done.

"Guns from our forts silenced several enemy batteries and blasted roads and bridges in Bataan, disrupting communications.

"Reports from Cebu indicate that Cebu City is in enemy hands.

The developing pattern of Philippine conquest indicated clearly that the Japanese do not intend to wait for the fall of Corregidor to begin their systematic looting of the island's vast store of sugar, cotton, rice, copra, tobacco, coffee, chocolate and pepper.

All these products are raised on Panay, Cebu and Negros, on which the invaders have been concentrating their efforts recently while Japanese bombing planes and artillery continued to pound Corregidor.

Destruction of Oil Fields 'Complete'

LONDON—(INS)—The rich Burmese oil fields at Yenangyaung, chief object of the Japanese drive into Burma, have been completely destroyed despite efforts of the enemy to hamper this destruction, it was officially announced today.

The Japanese advancing up the road from Prome on April 16 established a road block at Pinchaung crossing on the Yenangyaung-Kyauk Padaung road, it was conceded. By that time, however, destruction on the oil fields was complete.

"Our armored forces attacked from the north to clear this road block," the communique contended.

Allied Fliers Hit Jap Koepang Base

MELBOURNE —(INS)— A heavy new attack by United Nations fliers against the Japanese base at Koepang, on the Dutch island of Timor, was announced today as an army spokesman revealed that the formal organization of the United Nations Southwest Pacific command will take place shortly.

"All governments are now in complete agreement," the spokesman said, "and it can be anticipated that the formal organization of the Southwest Pacific area will take place in the immediate future."

Allied Bombers Smash At Tokyo, Other Areas

Japanese Reveal Fire Bombs Dropped at Vital Industrial, Naval Points In Surprise Attack.

damage was done to schools, homes, hospitals and cultural institutions.

It sought later to minimize the damage and said that homes, a school and a hospital were hit.

Berlin reported that Tokyo had had a seven-hour air raid alert.

There were no details of damage to Yokohama, the great port and naval base 20 miles from the capital on Tokyo bay.

Tokyo said that two planes raided Nagoya, Japan's third city, on Owari bay 235 miles from Tokyo on the south coast of Honshiu, the main island, with a population of more than 9,000,000.

It said that the planes dropped bombs which failed to do damage.

Kobe, a city of 800,000 on the south coast, 10 miles north of the great industrial city of Osaka, was raided by a single plane which likewise dropped bombs and likewise did no damage—according to Tokyo. An important shipbuilding and industrial city, it has gained much importance since the 1923 earthquake.

After the first statement that there had been no damage at Kobe and Nagoya, the Tokyo radio broadcast the following communique, recorded by the United Press at New York:

"OSAKA—Central defense headquarters announced at 3 p. m. (2 a. m. EWT):

"Three enemy planes raided Nagoya and Kobe. Only slight damage was caused.

"At 2:30 p. m. two enemy planes raided Nagoya. Although they dropped bombs damage was slight.

"One enemy aircraft raided Kobe around 2:30, dropping incendiary bombs, but no serious damage was caused."

Axis broadcasts which said that there were hundreds of thousands of persons in the streets of Tokyo after the air raid alarm sounded, thinking it was only a practice affair, indicated that the capital had been caught completely off guard.

Apparently mystified as to the attack base of the planes, Tokyo at once began fishing for clues.

It first reported that six American navy aviators of the aircraft carrier Yorktown were prisoners in Japan, but this was a misfire because it was known these fliers were captured many weeks ago in a navy raid on the Marshall islands.

Next Tokyo circulated "an unconfirmed rumor" that a United States aircraft carrier had been sunk today off the Japanese east coast. Washington did not bite.

The war department in Washington said it had no confirmation that there had been an air attack on Tokyo. The navy department said it had received no official information.

Likewise Gen. Douglas MacArthur's southwest Pacific headquarters in Australia said it had no confirmation.

But a Tokyo broadcast recorded by the United Press at San Francisco said:

"Allied warplanes attacked metropolitan Tokyo shortly after noon today (Saturday) and dropped bombs on homes, a school and a hospital, inflicting slight damage. It was the first enemy air raid on Tokyo since the outbreak of war in the Pacific.

"Military authorities at eastern headquarters said that Japanese pursuit planes shot down nine of the attacking planes.

"The enemy aircraft did not appear over the heart of the city, and they did not damage military targets.

"An air raid warning sounded and traffic in the streets was cleared immediately. Every person took his appointed station."

First reports recorded in this country of the raid mentioned merely Tokyo.

Then Berlin radio flashed a dispatch from the bureau of the official news agency in Tokyo which said the raid extended to the great port, naval and air base of Yokohama, 20 miles to the south, on Tokyo bay.

This dispatch said Allied planes, coming from different directions, entered Japanese territory at 12:30 p. m. Saturday (11:30 p. m. Friday EWT) but were repulsed at once by fighter planes and ground defenses and that only small damage was done.

The Tokyo announcement came as the war ended its 19th week.

It meant that 132 days after the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor, Japan proper had got its first taste of war in an attack on a city in which more than 7,000,000 persons are crowded, mostly in flimsy wood and paper houses through which disastrous fires sweep even in peace times.

It was noted that a little while before broadcasting the announcement of the raid, Tokyo had broadcast that fire had destroyed more than 400 houses in the village of Oguni in northern Japan and that it was feared casualties would prove high. Tokyo is in southern Japan.

The raid increased mystery over a Tokyo broadcast Thursday night, which took occasion to deny reports, alleged to have been put out by a British news agency, that three Allied planes had bombed Tokyo. This seemed to suggest that today's raid might have been the second—not the first, as the Japanese said—on Tokyo.

Mystery also attached to the base that Allied planes used, unless they put off from aircraft carriers.

The nearest point on the China coast, above Shanghai, is nearly 1,100 miles from Tokyo and that area is occupied by the Japanese.

There are American flying fortresses in Australia, far out of range, and in India, overland from China.

Brig. Gen. Ralph Royce, who led the bold flight of United States army air corps heavy bombers in an attack on the Philippines last week-end, said on his return to Australia that Burma was the vital spot from which to attack the Japanese. He said that if the Allied nations could get sufficient heavy bombers in Burma they could strike across China and cut Japan's southward communications from the Philippines, and could be used, with refueling bases in China, for raids on Japan.

Japs Fear We'll Clap Hands, Laugh!

TOKYO—(By Official Japanese Wireless)—(INS)—An appeal to the people of Japan to maintain composure in the face of air attacks was voiced today by Mamoru Shigemitsu, who recently retired as Japanese ambassador to Moscow.

"If we lose our composure the Americans and British will clap their hands and laugh at us," he said.

"The most important people are fully prepared mentally against raids and recognize the indubitable fact that attacks cannot be warded off completely no matter how much we are on guard."

Emperor Hirohito received the home secretary twice during the afternoon for reports on the raid. The news agency Domei said no damage had been done in the immediate neighborhood of the imperial palace.

BROADWAY

(No. 1—The Wm. Morris Office)

THERE is a fable among Times Square story-tellers about a safari of white traders who found themselves on the outskirts of a native village deep in Africa. Approaching, they observed that the local tribe was clustered in an ominously eager circle around a lone white man who was juggling eight cocoanuts and balancing a crude spear on the tip of his nose. When he had finished the traders rushed over to him with their guns drawn protectively.

Kilgallen

"Good thing you know parlor trucks, mister," they told the fellow. "These natives usually kill strange white men on sight. When did they capture you?"

"Nobody captured me," the man replied indignantly. "I was booked here by the William Morris office."

This ancient bit of apochrypha illustrates one of the most impressive aspects of the William Morris agency: the way it gets around.

The William Morris name has been associated with show business since 1898 when William Morris, sr., opened a tiny, one-room office on 14th street. The agency since then has moved and grown. Its Eastern headquarters now occupy an entire floor in Radio City, and branch offices almost as impressive are situated in Chicago, Cleveland and on the Coast.

The calling list in the Manhattan office on an average afternoon might (and often does) include Eddie Cantor, George Jessel, Sophie Tucker, Ray Bolger, Danny Kaye, Jean Sablon, Olsen and Johnson and Gypsy Rose Lee. In the California foyer much the same kind of procession wends its way—Mickey Rooney, Linda Darnell, John Barrymore, Betty Field, Dick Powell and Burns and Allen.

Although the phrase "nothing today" is probably repeated as often in the William Morris cubicles as it is in any agency or producer's office on Broadway, the Morris office has done a lot of developing of new talent, too. The boys over there like to recall that the Morris theater department helped a Broadway assistant director named Garson Kanin to land his first film contract; that the band department nursed Vaughn Monroe to the top of the swing heap; that the radio division took a slight Broadway comedy, "What a Life," and made it the most successful show of its kind in radio, "The Aldrich Family."

Mae West was launched on her highly profitable film career by the brilliant suggestion of a Morris representative handling acting talent. A call came from the coast for a "Mae West type" to appear in an imminent screen work.

"I've got just the gal for you," the agent said promptly. "Mae West!"

An early Morris triumph was the importation of Harry Lauder, the Scotch comedian who was a national idol over two decades ago. Morris also introduced to America's audiences a funny little man with a battered derby hat and a cane, whose name was Charlie Chaplin. Will Rogers was a Morris client, and old-timers at the agency recall a morning on which Will rode his horse up the steps of the old 28th street office and right into the boss' office, to wish him a happy birthday.

Some Morris bookings are as far-flung as the safari anecdote mentioned above would indicate. One afternoon about a year ago a representative of the agency phoned Leo Reisman, the bandleader, and told him a date had been set for the orchestra in Guatemala, some 3,000 miles off 52nd street.

"Swell," said Leo. "I'll start buying some tropical clothes."

"You won't need them," the agent said. "It's a one-night stand!"

Actually, it was the Guatemala fair, and Reisman was to play a command performance for President Ubico—but to the Morris office it was still a one-night stand.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—The girl wasn't doing so well. She sat at the grand piano, looking pretty, blue-eyed, demure, and worried. It was all her fault, obviously. They couldn't get the scene right.

"Look honey," said Lew Seiler, "you're not supposed to be a grand opera star. Just a woman singing, just singing, fooling around at the piano."

"Oh," said Irene Manning. "I see."

So she tried again. Raised her nice lyric soprano and sang "Body and Soul" like a light opera star, which she was before she came to movies, only then she was Hope Manning, not Irene.

"Bad," said the director. "I mean, it's too good. You sing too good. You aren't supposed to be a singer."

"I see," said Miss Manning, and then she sang "Body and Soul" just a little better than before. "Escape Into Crime" wasn't getting anywhere—fast.

"We'll have to get a singer and dub it in," said Harold Winston. He's the dialogue director. "Anybody know a singer who's not so hot, that can carry a tune?"

You and I could have mentioned a few, but just then somebody was smitten with genius. "Don't let her sing at all," said the smittee, "I mean, she can just hum. You know, da-de-da, then a word or so, and da-de-da. . . ."

It was wonderful. It worked. Miss Manning sings beautifully, but her hum is just—er, ho-hum. "Nice," beamed Lew Seiler. . . .

On the set of "My Gal Sal" Rita Hayworth had vocal problems of another kind. Rita is a looker, and she can dance with anybody, but she isn't looking for immortality as a singer. Her studio, cognizant of the fact, is not asking her to sing the several tunes she will seem to sing on the screen. So Rita has been practicing lip movements to synchronize with the sound track of Nan Wynn's rich voice in "Banks of the Wabash."

Irving Cummings is directing this story of the American songwriter, Paul Dresser, and his times. And there's a story there. Mrs. Cummings and Mrs. Casino, Rita's mother, were school friends back in Washington D. C. The Cummingses and the Casinos kept it up. When Rita was born in New York, Irving Cummings was among the first to see her at the hospital. But this is the first time he has directed her in a movie.

And he thinks she is going to surprise a lot of folks who like her but are afraid she can't act.

The film capital continues to hold its place among the big three with Washington, D. C. and New York as the interest centers of the nation. In the last 14 months, nine books have been published about Hollywood, its people and its activities.

RECORDS OF BUC REFLECT SLUMP IN EMPLOYMENT

Unemployment Benefit Payments Doubled Over First Quarter of 1941.

Reflecting increased unemployment during the change-over period from domestic to war production, unemployment compensation paid idle workers in the Mansfield area for the first quarter of this year more than doubled payments in the same period of 1941, the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation reported today.

Payments for the quarter ending March 31 in Richland and Morrow counties amounted to $159,099. They totaled $74,943 in the corresponding period of 1941. The two-county area is served by the Mansfield office. Benefits were paid to 809 persons in the Mansfield area in March.

The industrial picture improved rapidly last month, however, with the Mansfield office of the Ohio Employment service placing 230 workers in jobs, 38.6 per cent more than in February.

Weekly benefit payments for Richland and Morrow counties for the first quarter of this year averaged $12.98 as compared with a state average of $12.77. The higher average here, it was pointed out, shows that workers in this area are better paid when they are on the job.

Employment conditions showed a general improvement in the state last month. New claims for compensation dropped to 19,164 from 23,095 in February, a 17 per cent reduction. Averge number of benefit payments per week in March was 40,625 in Ohio as compared with 42,584 in February.

To provide more service for workers who want to get into defense jobs and for selective service registrants who need help in filling out their occupational questionnaires, the Mansfield office of the Ohio Employment service will remain open until 9 p. m. nightly, beginning Monday, C. W. Handley, office manager, announced today. The office will open at 8 a. m. The hours have been from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Handley said the office is increasing its efforts to place workers in essential war production jobs.

LAUNCH DRIVE ON DELINQUENTS

Police Prepare 15 Warrants For Motorists Failing to Pay Traffic Fines.

Mansfield motorists who have piled up long lists of parking meter and traffic violations have been warned to pay their fines voluntarily several times during the past year. Now, Mansfield police are going to "crack down" on drivers who have ignored the warnings and are going to have them brought into court.

City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner said today that he was preparing affidavits for the arrest of at least 15 of the offenders and that "this is only the beginning."

"The police department has warned these motorists repeatedly that they must pay their fines," said Wagner, "but the warnings have been ignored. Now we intend to take some action."

Wagner said that the drivers arrested would not only be forced to pay the original fines of $1 or $2 for their violations but would also be assessed court costs. In most cases, he said, these costs amount to about $6.30.

Mrs. Emmet McIntyre, police records clerk, has been sending out notices to motorists delinquent in the payment of parking meter or traffic violations to remind them that they are liable to arrest.

CHEMIST DECLARES VITAMINS CAN PRODUCE SUPER-FIGHTERS

(By United Press)

CHICAGO—Dr. Harry Holmes, president of the American Chemical society, believes that vitamins can win the war by producing a fighting navy that seldom gets "seasick," bomber pilots who can locate night targets, and soldiers who bloom with health.

It's just a matter of learning the A-B-C's, Dr. Holmes, head of Oberlin university's department of chemistry, told the Chicago section of the society last night.

"Vitamin A is an aid to night flying, aiding vision in quickly locating targets," he said. The Royal Air Force already is using it, he said, by adding carrots and halibut liver oil to pilots' diets.

"Vitamin B would be a great boon to the navy as it would curb seasickness," he said. "I would like to see the navy give vitamin B a thorough trial. It has a definite re-enforcing effect on the nerves and it greatly increases the ability to do physical work. It is equally important to fighter and defense factory worker."

Vitamin C is an asset to "buoyant health" which will help prevent scourges of disease that have been more deadly than bullets in past wars, Holmes said.

"Canned tomatoes, containing vitamin C, did wonders in warding off near-scurvy in the last war," but this time Dr. Holmes would advise "raw cabbage, in the form of cole slaw as the richest and cheapest source of vitamin C for camp diet."

DIES AT HOME

C. R. Ransom, 56, Succumbs After Heart Attack.

Clarence R. Ransom, 56, a resident of Mansfield for the last two years, died yesterday at his home, 148 East Third street, following a heart attack.

Mr. Ransom was born in Mt. Vernon on August 18, 1885, and lived there the greater part of his life.

Survivors are his widow, Jennie; six sons, Paul of Washington, D. C.; Glenn, Kenneth, Harry, Richard and Ralph Ransom, all of Mansfield; a daughter, Mava Ransom of Mansfield; his father, William Ransom, and a brother, Harry Ransom, both of Mt. Vernon.

DEATH TAKES EX-RAILROADER

Joseph J. Bundchu Dies on 72nd Birthday Anniversary.

WILLARD—Joseph J. Bundchu, a retired railroader, who was to have observed his 72nd birthday with his twin brother today, died in Municipal hospital here this morning following a lingering illness.

Bundchu retired five years ago after completing 50 years service with the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

Survivors include his widow, Cora May; two daughters, Mrs. Charles Ansel, and Mrs. Clayton Deeber, and four grandchildren, and his twin brother, Frank, all of Willard.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m., Monday at the home. Rev. Paul W. Sharp, pastor of the United Brethren church will officiate. Burial will be in Greenlawn cemetery.

Tony Moritz, courthouse custodian, thinks war production is a lot more important than getting the courthouse lawn back in condition, so he's about decided to let the lawn get along as best it can this summer. Usually luxuriant by this time of year, the section of lawn south of the county building is spotted and needs fertilizing and re-seeding. Moritz said workers to do the job are hard to find and "anyway, they're needed more on defense jobs."

Members of the Ganges Grange at Ganges wonder if someone is trying to sabotage their roadside beautification project. Rencently grange members, headed by Mrs. Harry Light and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mellick, took over the task of beautifying a triangular plot of land formed by the intersection of state and county roads at Ganges. State and county trucks helped haul in soil for the work and grass was planted. But motorists have been driving through the plot, Mrs. Light reports. She said her committee fears that it will not be able to go ahead with a plan to plant shrubs unless the drivers cooperate.

Dog Warden William Miller is convinced that some of the animals he picks up can identify him before he goes into action. Called to Plymouth yesterday to get a dog that had been left at a home when the family moved away, Miller and William E. O'Donnell, who went along to help, arrived in time to see the animal seeking a hiding place under the front porch. The dog crawled back so far under the porch and the space was so small that it couldn't get out. Miller and O'Donnell had to remove some of the bricks from the foundation to release it.

Members of the Richland county blind school who have been roller skating regularly each Thursday afternoon at their weekly recreation session at the Salvation Army have a new treat in store for them next week. Manager H. L. Dennis of the Coliseum has invited the group to be his guests and has promised to teach them some fancy steps on the Coliseum floor. The blind school has been practicing skating for several months with equipment furnished through the courtesy of the Coliseum management.

TAKEN BY DEATH

Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney Dies After Heart Attack.

The death in a New York hospital early today of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, one of America's wealthiest women, recalled to Richland countians the day last June when she visited Plymouth unexpectedly to attend the wedding of her son, Cornelius Vanderbilt "Sonny" Whitney, and the former Miss Eleanor Searle of Plymouth.

Mrs. Whitney, who was the former Gertrude Vanderbilt, succumbed to a heart attack. She was 65. Her health began to fail soon after the death of her brother, Gen. Cornelius Vanderbilt, a month ago.

Mrs. Whitney was projected into newspaper headlines several years ago when she waged a long court battle with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, over the custody of the now-married Gloria Vanderbilt de Cicco. Gloria was her niece.

POLICE OFFICER REMOVED HOME

Patrolman Conrady, Hurt In Mishap Leaves Hospital.

Patrolman Arthur Conrady, who was injured early Tuesday morning when an automobile crashed into the rear of his police motorcycle while he was waiting for a traffic light to change at the intersection of Park avenue west and Marion avenue, was released from General hospital yesterday afternoon.

Conrady suffered a back injury and numerous cuts and bruises. It was feared at first that he had received a fractured vertebra but X-rays showed that although his back was injured, there had been no fracture.

Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals said that Conrady had recovered sufficiently to be removed to his home at 71 Hedges street but that he did not know when the patrolman would be able to get back on traffic duty.

RADIOS SILENT

Alert Puts Stations Off Air In Southern California.

LOS ANGELES—(INS)—A yellow alert in the San Diego area silenced Southern California radio stations for 38 minutes last night and early today.

The stations were off the air, by order of the fourth interceptor command, from 11:27 p. m. to 12:05 a. m. The alert extended from Oceanside south to the Mexican border and was the result of "unidentified planes later identified as friendly."

CHINESE ARE JUBILANT AT JAPAN RAIDS

Hail Fulfillment of Pledge by Americans; Cite Blow To Enemy Morale.

(By International News Service)

CHUNGKING — Chungking, capital of Free China, today was a city beside itself.

From Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek to the most humble coolie, the people of Chungking shared the wildest jubilation imaginable when it became known that American bombers had blasted Tokyo and the other major cities of Japan.

Chungking has taken a savage and unmerciful pounding from the skies for three years—taking it because there was nothing the Chinese could do, lacking adequate fighter planes and anti-aircraft defenses.

Today Chungking learned that Tokyo has received for the first time a sample of what it has been dishing out. And the people of Chungking, who have never claimed to be super-men, waited to see how the self-dubbed super-men of Japan would react.

Information Minister Wang Shih Cheih summed up the general opinion as follows:

"It is regarded as the most significant development, marking the beginning of fulfillment of a pledge by the American government that the United Nations will soon bring the war to Japan proper.

"Besides the material damage caused by the bombings, the moral effect must be immense on the Japanese people who thus far have been kept in gross ignorance by militarists of Japan's vulnerability, and of the real strength of the United Nations."

Chungking regards the bombing of Japan as the greatest morale-lifting event since the outbreak of war. It has fulfilled the often expressed Chinese desire for retaliatory bombings of Tokyo to avenge the ruthless Japanese "target practice" against undefended Chinese cities.

It is believed also that news of the bombing of Tokyo will do more for the morale of the Chinese troops in Burma than two divisions of fresh men.

In Chungking today, the words of U. S. Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, first American ever to command major Chinese forces, were deep in the hearts of every Chinese.

It was just a few weeks ago that Stilwell promised:

"We will not be satisfied until American and Chinese troops march along the streets of Tokyo together."

Kiwanian Hubbies Put on Spot With Mystery Gardenias

Some 70-odd members of the Mansfield Kiwanis club breathed easier today, after clearing-up a big gardenia mystery.

The Kiwanians were puzzled and a little disturbed late yesterday afternoon to find their wives awaiting with open arms to welcome them and thank them for the beautiful gardenias.

Then men hadn't ordered any flowers and couldn't understand it, especially when their wives showed them cards reading, "To My Honey."

Accurate figures were not obtainable, but when notes were compared later it developed that some of the 70 admitted they hadn't sent the flowers and knew nothing about them. Others, however, modestly admitted they had sent 'em, and they accepted their wives' thanks with the "Shucks, I'm glad you like 'em" attitude.

A number of club members asked the florist in the case, C. L. Kafer, what it was all about. He was forced to tell them that the flowers had been ordered by the committee for Kiwanis Ladies Night. The wives wore the flowers at the Ladies Night party last evening in the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Miss Isabelle Cliff, president of the conference, will preside at the rally and Conrad O. Diehm will be toastmaster at the Fellowship supper at 6 p. m.

Honor for Newest Air Hero

America's newest air hero, Brig. Gen. Ralph Royce, center, who led the force of 13 U. S. bombers in a daring 4,000-mile flight from Australia to raid Jap bases in the Philippines, is shown in this excellent radio-photo from Australia receiving the Distinguished Service Cross. Maj. Gen. Rush Lincoln, left, is decorating Royce. At the right is Lieut. Col. John H. Davies, who led one group of the B-25 bombers in the raid. Davies also received the D. S. C.

FLAMING CITY OF CEBU FALLS

throughout April 17, though with somewhat decreased intensity. Little damage was done.

"Guns from our forts silenced several enemy batteries and blasted roads and bridges in Bataan, disrupting communications.

"Reports from Cebu indicate that Cebu City is in enemy hands.

The developing pattern of Philippine conquest indicated clearly that the Japanese do not intend to wait for the fall of Corregidor to begin their systematic looting of the island's vast store of sugar, cotton, rice, copra, tobacco, coffee, chocolate and pepper.

All these products are raised on Panay, Cebu and Negros, on which the invaders have been concentrating their efforts recently while Japanese bombing planes and artillery continued to pound Corregidor.

Destruction of Oil Fields 'Complete'

LONDON—(INS)—The rich Burmese oil fields at Yenangyaung, chief object of the Japanese drive into Burma, have been completely destroyed despite efforts of the enemy to hamper this destruction, it was officially announced today.

The Japanese advancing up the road from Prome on April 16 established a road block at Pinchaung crossing on the Yenangyaung-Kyauk Padaung road, it was conceded. By that time, however, destruction on the oil fields was complete.

"Our armored forces attacked from the north to clear this road block," the communique contended.

Allied Fliers Hit Jap Koepang Base

MELBOURNE —(INS)— A heavy new attack by United Nations fliers against the Japanese base at Koepang, on the Dutch island of Timor, was announced today as an army spokesman revealed that the formal organization of the United Nations Southwest Pacific command will take place shortly.

"All governments are now in complete agreement," the spokesman said, "and it can be anticipated that the formal organization of the Southwest Pacific area will take place in the immediate future."

Allied Bombers Smash At Tokyo, Other Areas

Japanese Reveal Fire Bombs Dropped at Vital Industrial, Naval Points In Surprise Attack.

damage was done to schools, homes, hospitals and cultural institutions.

It sought later to minimize the damage and said that homes, a school and a hospital were hit.

Berlin reported that Tokyo had had a seven-hour air raid alert.

There were no details of damage to Yokohama, the great port and naval base 20 miles from the capital on Tokyo bay.

Tokyo said that two planes raided Nagoya, Japan's third city, on Owari bay 235 miles from Tokyo on the south coast of Honshiu, the main island, with a population of more than 9,000,000.

It said that the planes dropped bombs which failed to do damage.

Kobe, a city of 800,000 on the south coast, 10 miles north of the great industrial city of Osaka, was raided by a single plane which likewise dropped bombs and likewise did no damage—according to Tokyo. An important shipbuilding and industrial city, it has gained much importance since the 1923 earthquake.

After the first statement that there had been no damage at Kobe and Nagoya, the Tokyo radio broadcast the following communique, recorded by the United Press at New York:

"OSAKA—Central defense headquarters announced at 3 p. m. (2 a. m. EWT):

"Three enemy planes raided Nagoya and Kobe. Only slight damage was caused.

"At 2:30 p. m. two enemy planes raided Nagoya. Although they dropped bombs damage was slight.

"One enemy aircraft raided Kobe around 2:30, dropping incendiary bombs, but no serious damage was caused."

Axis broadcasts which said that there were hundreds of thousands of persons in the streets of Tokyo after the air raid alarm sounded, thinking it was only a practice affair, indicated that the capital had been caught completely off guard.

Apparently mystified as to the attack base of the planes, Tokyo at once began fishing for clues.

It first reported that six American navy aviators of the aircraft carrier Yorktown were prisoners in Japan, but this was a misfire because it was known these fliers were captured many weeks ago in a navy raid on the Marshall islands.

Next Tokyo circulated "an unconfirmed rumor" that a United States aircraft carrier had been sunk today off the Japanese east coast. Washington did not bite.

The war department in Washington said it had no confirmation that there had been an air attack on Tokyo. The navy department said it had received no official information.

Likewise Gen. Douglas MacArthur's southwest Pacific headquarters in Australia said it had no confirmation.

But a Tokyo broadcast recorded by the United Press at San Francisco said:

"Allied warplanes attacked metropolitan Tokyo shortly after noon today (Saturday) and dropped bombs on homes, a school and a hospital, inflicting slight damage. It was the first enemy air raid on Tokyo since the outbreak of war in the Pacific.

"Military authorities at eastern headquarters said that Japanese pursuit planes shot down nine of the attacking planes.

"The enemy aircraft did not appear over the heart of the city, and they did not damage military targets.

"An air raid warning sounded and traffic in the streets was cleared immediately. Every person took his appointed station."

First reports recorded in this country of the raid mentioned merely Tokyo.

Then Berlin radio flashed a dispatch from the bureau of the official news agency in Tokyo which said the raid extended to the great port, naval and air base of Yokohama, 20 miles to the south, on Tokyo bay.

This dispatch said Allied planes, coming from different directions, entered Japanese territory at 12:30 p. m. Saturday (11:30 p. m. Friday EWT) but were repulsed at once by fighter planes and ground defenses and that only small damage was done.

The Tokyo announcement came as the war ended its 19th week.

It meant that 132 days after the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor, Japan proper had got its first taste of war in an attack on a city in which more than 7,000,000 persons are crowded, mostly in flimsy wood and paper houses through which disastrous fires sweep even in peace times.

It was noted that a little while before broadcasting the announcement of the raid, Tokyo had broadcast that fire had destroyed more than 400 houses in the village of Oguni in northern Japan and that it was feared casualties would prove high. Tokyo is in southern Japan.

The raid increased mystery over a Tokyo broadcast Thursday night, which took occasion to deny reports, alleged to have been put out by a British news agency, that three Allied planes had bombed Tokyo. This seemed to suggest that today's raid might have been the second—not the first, as the Japanese said—on Tokyo.

Mystery also attached to the base that Allied planes used, unless they put off from aircraft carriers.

The nearest point on the China coast, above Shanghai, is nearly 1,100 miles from Tokyo and that area is occupied by the Japanese.

There are American flying fortresses in Australia, far out of range, and in India, overland from China.

Brig. Gen. Ralph Royce, who led the bold flight of United States army air corps heavy bombers in an attack on the Philippines last week-end, said on his return to Australia that Burma was the vital spot from which to attack the Japanese. He said that if the Allied nations could get sufficient heavy bombers in Burma they could strike across China and cut Japan's southward communications from the Philippines, and could be used, with refueling bases in China, for raids on Japan.

Japs Fear We'll Clap Hands, Laugh!

TOKYO—(By Official Japanese Wireless)—(INS)—An appeal to the people of Japan to maintain composure in the face of air attacks was voiced today by Mamoru Shigemitsu, who recently retired as Japanese ambassador to Moscow.

"If we lose our composure the Americans and British will clap their hands and laugh at us," he said.

"The most important people are fully prepared mentally against raids and recognize the indubitable fact that attacks cannot be warded off completely no matter how much we are on guard."

Emperor Hirohito received the home secretary twice during the afternoon for reports on the raid. The news agency Domei said no damage had been done in the immediate neighborhood of the imperial palace.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, APRIL 18, 1942.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and remember that a moment's carelessness may cost time, money and pain.

Not knowing about war time, it isn't surprising that the younger children can't understand about bedtime coming in broad daylight.

A recent poll revealed that fully one half of the voters do not know the name of their congressman—otherwise he might hear from more of them.

Evidence of Growing Air Power

SOME IDEA of the importance of increasing air power as rapidly as possible is gained from widely separated events of the past week—the greater intensity of British air attacks on Nazi-occupied territory in Europe and the surprise raid which American bombers in Australia made on Jap forces in the Philippines.

Much is being said about the need for offensive warfare on the part of the United Nations and it cannot be doubted that the war will take an offensive turn as soon as military leaders decide the time is ripe for such a move on a large scale, with ample manpower and equipment to assure success.

The long-distance attack from Australia and the persistent hammering of the RAF bombers and fighting planes, shuttling back and forth across the channel, serve a good purpose at this time but should not be mistaken for an offensive such as will be needed to defeat the Axis powers and put an end to the war.

Greatest immediate need, in the belief of many observers, is sufficient pressure from the west to prevent concentration of Nazi strength on Russia in the threatened spring drive, and this is a task which Great Britain, aided by supplies from the United States, will probably be able to handle.

While presenting a somewhat darker picture, from the American viewpoint, the situation in the Far East will continue to show Jap gains only as long as that nation holds tremendous numerical superiority in the air and a manpower advantage of more than ten to one, as was the case on Bataan and other places in the far eastern theater of war.

The week comes to an end with long-awaited news that the war has finally been carried to the Japanese homeland, with air attacks on Tokyo, Yokohama and Kobe. While these can be considered as no more than "token missions," in their effectiveness, they at least serve to impress on the people of Japan a suggestion of what may be expected when the force of United Nations air power really gets into action.

Plight of Rejected Selectees

WHEN more time has been given to sifting out the "bugs" in the induction phase of selective service some way will probably be found to avoid the practice of delaying rejections until after draftees have been sent away from home, assumedly acceptable for military training.

In the earlier stages of selective service, before America's entry into the war, a thorough physical examination of registrants was made before registrants were sent to an induction center and those who failed to meet the tests were rejected, without embarrassment or interference with their civilian jobs. Those who passed were given time to take care of private business matters and get ready for induction into service.

Now, however, with more emphasis on speed, the local physical check-up seems designed to do no more than weed out the obviously unfit, leaving final decision to army doctors at induction centers. Those who are accepted enter service at once and those rejected are sent back home—disappointed, embarrassed and probably jobless.

It is complained by the army that navy and marine corps recruiters have been over-zealous in efforts to get volunteers in those branches of service, during the time before 1-A selectees were ordered to report, and that the army thereby lost many good prospects.

While it may seem odd that there is competition in the several branches of military service, it appears reasonable to assume that a better way can be found to handle this situation than is now being done. There should at least be some provision for final physical examinations before young men quit their jobs and are sent away from home, without assurance that they will pass the tests of army doctors at an induction center.

This weak spot in selective service is causing such widespread dissatisfaction that something is likely to be done about it soon.

From Extravagance To Thrift

LITTLE WONDER that some folks have difficulty in making the quick shift from extravagant spending to the extreme thrift now being preached—if not practiced—by the federal administration.

After the futile attempt to spend the country into prosperity, with frightful waste of public money, there is an abrupt turn to a thrift program, with emphasis placed on the need to get along with less instead of buying more.

Coming so quickly on the heels of encouraged extravagance, governmental and individual, it is rather difficult for the average person to grasp the apparent importance of extending the life of a safety razor blade or turning in an empty tooth paste tube when purchasing another.

Cultivation of the thrift habit, and determination to live within income, are commendable traits at all times and might well be practiced more generally even after the exigencies of war have passed.

Speeders Are Still With Us

AUTOMOBILE traffic is said to be reduced already nearly one-fourth. It will shrink much more than that before the travel curve starts up again. It may be many years before new cars can be bought freely.

But it would not be suspected from the highway traffic. Most of the cars on the road seem to bowl along as usual, wearing themselves out about twice as fast as necessary.

A thrifty observer naturally wonders whether these speedy drivers burning up the road and the rubber between towns don't understand the situation, or don't care. About half the driving seems strangely reckless and improvident.

Although possibly a little cumbersome as a first name, "MacArthur" will serve as a quite satisfactory middle name for male children born about now.

Now that Eleanor Roosevelt has denied that she will be a candidate for congress that will be enough of that.

A LONG HARD TRIP AHEAD

New Dealers Carry On 'As Usual'

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

THERE'S one thing that is struggling to go on as usual, maybe somewhat to the detriment of the national war effort.

That's the New Deal.

The New Dealers, by intention, anyway, are governmental, social and economic progressives, of course. And war never has been advertised as progressive—not while it's going on. It occasionally is waged with a view to preservation of progress previously made and acquiring more subsequently, but it's a reactionary job in itself.

Now, to have a lot of progressives in charge of a reactionary stunt obviously doesn't promise efficient reaction, with the latter as the more immediate requirement.

For Nine Years.

The New Dealers started dealing about nine years ago.

Oodles of 'em were needed to dish out the cards. The Washington administration assembled them from all points of the compass, and set 'em at it, as about two or three hundreds of bureaus and agencies—but all of 'em be it remembered, as socio-economic, not military or naval, outfits. No war was going on then, and it wasn't foreseen then that our currently existing departments would presently have to be supplemented by dozens and scores of Selective Services, Priorities Boards, OPM'S, et cetera.

The initial brood functioned very satisfactorily up to the war's outbreak and until we got into it. Our depression gradually wore off and they got the credit for it, which possibly they were entitled to.

The war, though robbed a lot of 'em of most of their raison d'etre.

Between conscription's and war industry's demands, unemployment was largely sopped up. If there still's a demand for social and economic reforms, it's for a new kind, which the earlier agencies aren't adapted to supplying.

There's a deal of clamor for the abolition of several of 'em, like the CCC and the NYA, on the ground that they're both frightfully expensive and now entirely superfluous. They can't be transformed into war agencies, because their organizations aren't suited to wartime's requirements.

Yet the heads and personnels of such bureaus don't like the idea of being chucked into the discard.

For one item, they don't want to lose their jobs.

Additionally, a lot of 'em are socio-economic enthusiasts. They LIKE their work and want to keep it up. And even, they say, if it's a temporary redundancy, it'll be a tremendous necessity at the war's end—socio economics will be a vital consideration then and they'll be right on hand to take care of 'em, preventing another crash and depression, like the last time.

Jealousy.

There are New Dealers, too, who haven't got jobs of their own involved, such as lawmakers on Capital Hill, who hold the same opinion.

Well, the nub of it is that the established New Deal agencies and the newly created war agencies are jealous of one another. They conflict, to the war agencies' momentary disadvantage, though it'll be the other way about if the war agencies' yowls result in getting the peace agencies abolition shortly. They won't be totally abolished, it's a certainty, but some of 'em may be.

The public, I judge, from the comment I hear and read, is predominantly pro-abolition of the socio-economic group, as an economic measure.

Later, at the war's end, who knows?

Today the number of government workers in Washington, is about twice what it was at the end of the last war—and it was greater then than ever before in history.

And DOES it cost money! Look at your last income tax check!

Man About Manhattan

Heard In Passing

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The people you meet:

At a cocktail party for Alfred Hitchcock, the Hollywood director—half the people there to talk shop, the other half to be seen. And among the latter were a couple well along in their thirties, she a statuesque blonde, he a tall, slender man in need of a haircut. They looked like phonies, but you had to admire their bravery. The blonde's particularly. Her cocktail costume had seen its best days, her fox fur must have been recently cleaned

You gathered that they were in radio, but what they wanted was obscure. They wanted something, naturally. But she seemed very happy when anyone spoke to her, and he talked earnestly to anyone who listened. Perhaps all they wanted was to be able to say: "As I was saying to Hitchcock the other day . . ."

AT THE same place—another blonde. An emphatic blonde, you might say. She had a glass in her hand, fluttered from one group to another. "I must meet Hitchcock," she would say, and then drift on. I doubt if she did meet him, or if anything happened when she did. Because when I heard her name I remembered her as a movie actress who was tops when I was a lot younger.

With her, but only in purpose, was a slenderish, youngish man whose suit was petitioning for retirement. I recognized his face immediately—and it came out bit by bit in his conversation that he hadn't had a stage part in a year, hadn't had a film part in a year and a half. People had forgotten his name, but he was being very brave too. He wanted Hitchcock to see him. But he couldn't seem too anxious. He was just about to dash off for cocktails somewhere else. And he could say: "I just saw Hitchcock . . ."

Two more at the same place, and then we move on. She was a small, modest little woman who drifted from group to group, talked a bit and then went on. Some people looked at her a little curiously . . . until it was whispered about that she was Mrs. Hitchcock. And then they gave her the rush. . . . He was young, 27 to be exact, red-headed, and likeable on sight. You called him "Red" and weren't in the least afraid of him . . . until he laughed and said he was the Norman Lloyd who was the saboteur in Hitchcock's newest picture, likewise "Saboteur."

AT THE Rainbow Room now—he a dapper, smallish, active man; she a very handsome blonde with gorgeous shoulders above a strapless evening gown. They were dancing—rhumbas, tangoes, foxtrots—with such professional skill that other dancers stopped to watch. And you discovered they were dancing for the fun of it she in her short heels so that she wouldn't seem much taller than he. And you asked questions and discovered that he was an accountant, and that they were the parents of a grown boy. But it hit you hard because they were doing something spectacular only for the fun of it, not caring whether anyone or everyone looked—not even Hitchcock, who wasn't there anyway.

Timely Editorial

Golfers' Dilemma.

The order of the WPB halting manufacture of golf clubs, balls and other equipment is regarded as a serious blow by pros of the game. They say they are loyal Americans and can take it but that in a matter of months it probably will all be over for them. There will be general regret at this because the pros usually give a fine account of themselves and are good to look at. Otherwise they wouldn't be pros.

But this war casualty hits a lot of the duffers and the dubbers just right. It's been a hard winter for them, and with the coming of spring they have been torn equally by doubt and temptation. Now their dilemma is resolved. They have a second alibi. They can retire if they wish, at least temporarily, and until courage rises again with better days. And it can be done out of pure patriotism, almost. — Kansas City Times.

Summary of Week's Happenings

Congressmen Feel Public Pulse On Taxes and War-Time Issues

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOST of the 500-odd congressmen were back home during the week getting some rest, mending political fences and trying to fathom how their constituents feel on the major issues facing congress.

One domestic issue was how to head off inflation. Back in Washington President Roosevelt was working out an overall program for curbing inflation which he planned to present to congress. It was known that various elements within the administration were arguing about the feasibility of adopting these devices:

Wage controls, still higher taxes, a ceiling on most prices, further restrictions on retail credit and more extensive rationing of scarce goods.

One congressman who stayed in Washington, Chairman George (D-Ga.) of the senate finance committee, came out meanwhile for a program of "induced savings" to help ward off inflation and finance the war.

He explained that by "induced savings" he had in mind a system whereby a taxpayer would be allowed to make certain deductions from his net taxable income for any income invested in government bonds or other war securities.

Other big issues were the still lively questions of modifying the 40 hour week and curbing war profits.

After sounding out public sentiment in his Georgia district, Chairman Vinson began drafting legislation to modify a bill he and Rep. Smith (D-Va.) had introduced earlier to curb labor and profits. The main changes:

1. Instead of suspending the 40-hour week completely he would make the normal work week 48 hours with time and a half pay for work over 48 hours.

2. Instead of a flat 6% profit limitation he would ask for a curb on all war profits above 8% on contracts over $100,000. To further encourage small business to change over to war production he would offer a $6,000 "cushion profit allowance" in addition to the 8%.

3. Instead of suspending the closed shop in war industries he would freeze the union status in war industries to the status quo.

Forecasts

Clyde Farnsworth, AP writer: "The German military machine (in coming battles) will not be the enviable, glittering, begadgeted motel it once was; it has had some pretty nasty collisions."

Ernest Bevin, British labor minister: "U. S. plane production within five or six weeks will be equal to the total output of Germany, Italy and Japan."

Col. Eddie Rickenbacker: American flying ace of World War 1: "This war will last a minimum of five years, barring miracles, with a possibility of it lasting ten years."

At Home

GE's Foreign Relations.

Cemented tungsten carbide is a substance nearly as hard as diamond and is vital as a metal-toughening material in producing machine tools and guns.

During the week the senate patents committee heard a justice department official present General Electric company as belonging to a patent pool on tungsten carbide with the German Krupp interests.

He said that GE and a subsidiary had been able to run prices up so high ($453 a pound) by keeping German tungsten carbide off the American market that America is now suffering from a "notorious" shortage of the material. The actual cost of making it, he charged, is $23 a pound. Krupp, in contrast, kept prices low, now had plenty of it; and so Germany is using 22 times as much tungsten carbide per ton of steel as the U. S., he said.

The senate committee was holding the hearing before acting on a bill to permit the president to take over patents necessary for war production. GE denied there was any shortage of tungsten carbide.

FDR Names It.

President Roosevelt has been looking for a name for the present war. He has collared many a White House visitor in his search for a title.

"World War II, which many newspapers have used, is too matter-of-fact for his taste. On Tuesday a Latin American visitor disclosed that FDR had told him he has selected "War of Survival" as his tentative choice, since the survival of all humanity hinges on the outcome of this war.

Abroad

What Next In India?

The main rock over which negotiations were wrecked was the issue of defense powers that would be allowed the interim Indian government. Britain had compromised on the issue, but not enough. The Congress Party contended that only immediate freedom and self-government for Indians could light the flame which would fire millions of their hearts and move them to action. Also, it objected to provisions that would permit the Moslems and the maharajahs' states to remain aloof from any majority government.

The Moslem League likewise rejected the plan but for the reason that it didn't go far enough in guaranteeing the right of Moslems to remain aloof and form their own "Pakistan."

So Sir Stafford Cripps withdrew Britain's plan for the present and wearily went back to London.

India's armed strength, according to latest reports, is 1,250,000 men.

Meanwhile black clouds filled with Nipponese planes, tanks and warships swirled closer and closer to the Indians. Britain disclosed that at least a fourth of Japan's total strength of battleships and perhaps a half of her aircraft carriers had moved into the Bay of Bengal.

In Burma the Japanese war machine crunched on toward the oil fields of central Burma.

Eyes on France.

German nervousness about an attack on the continent was not diminished by conditions in France.

The French populace had become overwhelmingly pro-ally. So the Nazis sent their chief French lackey, wheedling, swarthy Pierre Laval, who would like to crush Britain "to a grease spot," to see Petain. Laval, a former premier, had been Petain's right-hand man after the French Armistice until Petain fired him in a night-time coup in late 1940.

Laval demanded re-instatement in the cabinet. Twice, the 85-year-old Petain refused. But the Germans were turning the screws. Informed Britons said the Germans threatened France with mass starvation.

On Tuesday Petain capitulated. It was reported that Laval became active head of the government with the title of "Chief of Government" while Petain remained titular head as a decorative nobody. Admiral Darlan lost some of his power but remained in control of the military forces.

Pressure on Bulgaria.

Bulgaria, which has stubbornly held itself aloof from the war, also felt the Nazi pressure tightening. Germany badly needs Bulgarian men to throw into the maw of the Eastern front, and she needs Bulgaria's cooperation in any drive through Turkey.

The Bulgarian cabinet balked at knuckling down. Finally seven members resigned and Premier Philov formed a new one with only two of his former ministers included.

As Philov announced that his new cabinet would "cooperate closely with the Axis" the new war minister told the army "to be ready to fulfill its duty at any moment."

In Short

Shot: A Chinese seaman aboard a British merchantman in New York harbor, when he and 11 Chinese shipmates rioted in an attempt to obtain shore leave.

Instructed: Ten companies in the Chicago and Milwaukee area that hold millions of dollars in war contracts, to cease discriminating against workers because of race or religion, by The President's Committee on Fair Employment Practice.

Called: A hearing on whether mailing privileges of the national weekly Social Justice, which has reflected the views of the Rev. Charles Coughlin, be revoked, by Postmaster General Walker. He accused it of making a "substantial contribution to a systematic and unscrupulous attack upon the war effort." Coughlin answered that "the Jews, Communists and New Dealers" were out to get him.

Died: General Hugh S. Johnson, angry-tongued "Ironpants" of the World war and the NRA and more recently a caustic newspaper columnist.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON —War-thriving businesses are almost as numerous as lobbyists in this mush-profit organization is probably the colossus of 'em all.

It's the Welfare and Recreation association which feeds a rapidly-growing multitude of federal workers here. The association operates 32 cafeterias, eight lunch counters and a flock of soda stands. It is serving meals now at the rate of 2,500,000 monthly or almost 100,000 on each working day.

IF A housewife were buying groceries for a crew the size of that which jams the government cafeterias every workday noon, she would phone a special order something like this:

"Send over 15,000 more eggs; that should hold us for today."

Late this year the largest eating place will be added to the cafeteria chain upon completion of the world's biggest office building, the new war department structure across the Potomac river in Arlington, Va.

That cafeteria will have 28 service lines, capable of handling more than 30,000 people daily. It will provide 200,000 square feet of space for eating, enough room to seat 5,000 persons at one time.

A gigantic soda fountain in the new war department building should rate as a point of interest for future sightseers in the capital. It will be 288 feet long. That's almost a city block. The building will also have six huge lunch counters.

THE Welfare Association also operates exclusive dining rooms for officials in various government agencies. Big shots of the War Production Board have a special room they outfitted and furnished themselves. The association bills them for the food and service they receive.

Many busy government officials have lunch or dinner sent to their desks. The number has increased greatly in the last two years of defense and war business.

Uncle Sam's workers apparently are not indulging in luncheon orgies. They pay an average of 21 cents a meal for the food served in the cafeterias, according to association figures. The association reports its net income at three-tenths of a cent per tray.

Profits are used in expanding and improving the service. The association also operates public tennis courts, swimming pools, boating and bicycling places.

Philippines: Down But Not Out

Roll Call on Islands.

In addition to taking over Bataan, the enemy also succeeded in landing forces on mountainous Cebu, a fairly large central Philippine isle.

This brought to at least six the major islands invaded. Other islands wholly or partially overrun are Luzon, Mindanao, Masbate, Mindoro and Jolo. In at least the north of Luzon and Mindanao small bands of Americans and Filipinos continued harassing the enemy.

However, there are 7,000 islands to the archipelago, most of them small. More than half of the land areas of the archipelago is believed to be still free of invasion. Major unoccupied islands include Panay, Negroes, Bohol, Leyte and Samar.

In America, the Philippine Resident Commissioner, J. M. Elizalde, opined that despite the loss of Bataan "Filipinos will carry on the fight, from every doorstep and from behind every tree," until American forces return.

And at least some Americans weren't long in returning. Thirteen American bombers (three of them the giant B-17's) took off from Australia and before they returned they had given the enemy a solid pounding at bases at Manila, Cebu and Davao in Mindanao.

New Light on Bataan.

There was another side to the fighting on Bataan, a side that obviously couldn't be told until after it would do the enemy no good.

An American officer revealed that so low was the food supply that two months before Bataan fell the defenders were reduced to eating their pack mules. For weeks they had no vegetables, eggs nor citrous fruit.

Besides trying to starve them out, the Japanese also arranged their shelling at night so as to prevent the defenders from getting sleep or rest.

Another fact not previously disclosed to Americans was that the U. S. did try to ship in supplies to Bataan from the outside world. But for every ship that got through, two were sunk.

"Our forces on Bataan collapsed because they were physically exhausted," the officer explained.

As an indication of the men's mood he repeated a remark he heard a sergeant make while in a foxhole during a bombing:

"There are no atheists in foxholes."

HOROSCOPE

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE.

For Sunday, April 19.

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds testimonies of the sudden, surprising, spectacular and sensational, but at basis it should be safe and sane, the denouement depending on which course is pursued to gain the adventure, romance and unique experience indicated. Overdoing in any direction may have its penalties and regrets, so shun extravagence of act, expenditure, emotions and general behavior.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of great if not sensational adventure, which may result in substantial growth, returns and general stability if the spirit of romance, adventure and novelty be directed into safe channels. The great danger is from peculiar friends, strange persons or situations rather than the dramatic urges of themselves.

A child born on this day although fond of the unusual and good things of life yet may possess many solid traits. Its peculiar urges should turn to creative expression and it may attain secure and worthy position in life.

For Monday, April 20.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a continuance of the surprising and unforeseen developments of the affairs with the promise of a stabilizing result, if reason, good judgment and not emotionalism are allowed to hold sway. There may be menace of cheating, treachery, and designing associates.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a thrilling and romantic year, with unpredictable adventures, probably romantic. But be vigilant as to false persons and circumstances in both business and domestic affairs. Shun extravagance, doubtful intrigues.

A child born on this day may have much ingenuity and skill, with many solid traits but may be easily led away by false values and associates.

Band Members Have Charge of Meeting

Members of the Senior high school band had charge of the meeting of the Band Parents' club which was held last evening in Prospect park pavilion. COTERIE CLUB NAMES OFFICERS FOR YEAR

Mrs. Josephine Sonner Named to Serve As President of Organization at Meeting Held Friday at the Home of Mrs. Nora Cairns.

MRS. JOSEPHINE SONNER was elected president of the Coterie club at a meeting of the organization held Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Nora Cairns, West Fourth street. Other officers named to serve the club for the coming year were Mrs. Eva Trine, vice president, and Mrs. Emma Warne, treasurer. Eleven members were in attendance.

Mrs. Warne was in charge of the program. Readings were given by Mrs. Warne, Mrs. Sonner and Mrs. D. C. Guthrie. Mrs. Cairns played a piano solo. Vocal solos were presented by Mrs. Frank Bair and Mrs. Floyd Fighter. A contest was played in charge of Mrs. George Garrison, Mrs. Alice McGinly and Mrs. Trine. The prize was awarded to Mrs. Warne. Group singing was held at the close of the meeting. Luncheon was served at a long table attractively decorated with roses and jonquils. Plans were made for a picnic to be held in June.

Mansfield Story League Meets

Fourteen members of the Mansfield Story League attended the dinner Thursday evening at The Woods, on the Ashland road. Dinner was served at small tables decorated with flowers in pastel shades.

Miss Hazel Manner introduced the program of river stories. "High Water Along the Arkansas" by Charles J. Finger, was told by Miss Leona Miles. Miss Vera Smythe's selection was "Danger on the Docks," by Florence Brumbach. Remainder of the evening was spent socially. Next meeting will be held at the Y. W. C. A. on May 14.

DUO-DECEM CLUB.

Duo-Decem club members met Thursday night at the home of Mrs. R. L. Parker in Ashland. Mrs. Henry Pollett was elected to keep clippings about the club's activities for the scrapbook. Prize in hearts was won by Mrs. Kenneth Haire. The luncheon table was decorated with jonquils and there were arrangements of forsythia in the living room. Mrs. Albert Snively, 245 Walter avenue, will entertain the club on April 30.

P. T. A. Has Two-Speakers At Meeting

Miss Marian Snyder, instructor at the School for Deaf, presented a talk and had some of her pupils give a demonstration of the school's work when the Woodland P. T. A. had a meeting this week. A talk on "Y. W. C. A. Camps for Girls" was given by Mrs. Thornton Moore.

Business session was in charge of Orlo Smith, president. Nominating committee named at this meeting is comprised of Mrs. James B. Rizer, Mrs. Otto Kline and Mrs. W. W. Peirce. Hospitality committee for the April meeting included Mrs. Marion D. Ward, Mrs. John Schroeder, Mrs. H. Stauffer and Mrs. D. D. Orewiler. Next meeting will be held on May 12.

Guests Speak at Meeting of Club

Prospect school Mothers' club members held a meeting at the school Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Comus Rupert, president, conducted the business session. Mrs. Karl Kunert, Mrs. Lee Garber and Mrs. Leo Harrington were named on a nominating committee for new officers.

George Taylor, school principal, gave an interesting talk on the value of good reference books, both at home and school. Miss Gregory of the Y. W. C. A. gave a talk on the Y. W. daytime camp. Sewing was done during the afternoon. An attendance dinner will be held at the school on May 14. Mrs. Hildreth Johns will be in charge.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"WHAT DOES he want to know?" the old professor said a bit testily.

"He says first," Watson told him reassuringly, "that you don't need to worry one bit. He's leaving a man on guard who knows all about the electric system you've got, and the plumbing. He'll have his own cot and blankets and rustle his own food, but he wants to know where you want him to sleep. He also wants to know about the electric refrigerator. Do you want him to shut it off?"

"Not if the man knows electricity," the old man decided. "But tell him to defrost it when it's necessary. Tell him also to use up whatever food is in the refrigerator, and to take what he needs from the supplies in the pantry. He can sleep in the room where they had us tied, just off the living room. There's a good comfortable bed-sofa in there, and he'll find linen, blankets and pillows in the closet off the bathroom. He won't need any cot. I'll probably be back inside of a week anyway."

I sent a furtive glance at Charles, for I had a conviction that he would decide when it would be safe for the older man to return home. But he uttered no word of comment on the old professor's statement.

"All right, then," Watson said. "I'll go back and tell him that. But he told me to ask you to hold your cars here until they come through. They're taking along the gangster's armored car, which wasn't damaged, and they're coming back this way to get to the hospital quicker. Gus can stand and watch where he did before. I'll come back that far with them and drop off and join Gus. When he sees us coming he can signal you to be ready to follow us down the road. Is that all right?"

He looked at me as he asked the question, and I gave an approving nod.

Madge To See Captain.

"It couldn't be better," I said. "But," as I rose from my seat, "I'm going back with you. I must speak to the captain about that hospital idea."

The man named Charles, surprisingly, made a quick involuntary gesture of dissent, but he spoke no word of protest. Gus, however, was voluble.

"Your father wouldn't like that, Missis Graham," he said.

"He would approve if he knew why I was going, Gus," I said firmly. "You may come along if you like."

"I was coming anyway," he returned obstinately. "But couldn't I tell the captain what you want him to know?"

"I am sorry, Gus," I told him with equal stubbornness, "but I must see for myself what can be done."

"I know what you mean," he said comprehendingly, "but I wish you'd let me do it. That ain't no sight for a lady back there, I'll bet—everything all messed up and—"

"There's nobody dead, is there" I asked sharply, with a sudden suspicion that Watson had been keeping something back.

"No ma'am," Watson said, "nor anybody in any danger of dying. There's really no reason why you shouldn't go back if you want to."

I know something of New England women and their pioneer heritage. If they make up their minds to face any emergency, it is a rash man who attempts to shield them from unpleasantness, or to stand in their way. I guessed that Jim Watson had learned this lesson in his youth and never had forgotten it.

"Even if there had been death, I should have to see the captain," I told him. "Let us start now. We mustn't delay him any longer than is necessary."

"You won't be delaying him," Watson replied. "They're pretty busy giving first aid just now. We'll have plenty of time to walk there and back again, unless I can turn Branchman's car around and drive you back."

Madge Decides To Walk.

"That would be absurd," I told him, "as long as we are not delaying, and can cover the ground quite rapidly."

"I'll say you can," Watson said admiringly. "I saw you running across the lawn. Then if everything's settled, let's get going. The captain will begin to wonder what's keeping me."

KINGS ROW

CHAPTER XXVI

Suddenly blind with tears, she rushed to the front room. She closed the door behind her and leaned against it. She did not know what to do. She wanted to do something or say something. For a moment she had a recollection of her old grandmother, her father's mother, sitting by the fire with the beads of the rosary moving one by one between her fingers.

But Randy could not pray. If there had been a power for good, for benevolence in the universe, it would have saved Drake from a senseless accident. No: she could not pray. Drake's world had turned its back on him. She used to look a little wistfully, a little yearningly at that world and wish she were in it, and of it. She recalled Drake's aunt, Mrs. Livingstone. She had seemed to Randy the very peak of elegance and charm. But what of all those people who should have helped Drake when he needed it?

And now: her father, hard and knotty from years of hard work.

Randy returned to the kitchen.

They sat in silence for a time. Then Mr. Monaghan stood up.

"Now you listen to me, daughter."

"All right."

"I never said anything to you about Drake when he began coming around here. I—I just didn't know what to think. I feel awful glad that everything's turned out this way, but we got to take everything as it comes. Now, like I asked you a while ago, how we going to fix this up?"

"I guess I know what you mean. I'm going to marry Drake."

The old man looked searchingly at her. The underlid of his eyes sagged a little.

"Is that the way you want to do it?"

"I've got to convince him, some way. I'll think it out."

"Randy, you're a good girl."

"I'm just doing what I want to."

"Now look here. There's one thing. There's just me. So this house is yours, anyhow. I saved a little money. Ain't any of us going to starve."

"I'll think of something. First of all, I'm going to send a cable to Parris Mitchell. There's been enough of this foolishness."

"You ought to let Mitchell know, I think."

"I'm going to—right today."

Randy dressed again and went out. It was horribly cold, but she scarcely noticed it. She was excited and terrified, too. How Drake could be managed was the real question. He'd be mad, no doubt, about letting Parris know, but she was certain that she should.

She wrote carefully, crossing out words, and finally rewrote the whole message. It was a succinct but full account of the loss of Drake's money, and the accident. She bit the eraser in the pencil for a moment or two, and added: "I must keep him with me somehow."

The next afternoon Mr. Patterson Lawes at the Burton County Bank carefully polished his glasses and reread the cablegram that had been handed to him.

Mr. Carter, the assistant cashier, came out of the vault. "What's up?"

"That young Mitchell — trying to be a fool."

"Yes?"

"Cabled orders to turn over that—you know, the Tower estate that was left to him, to Drake McHugh."

"Well, well! Very nice for McHugh."

Mr. Lawes slapped it on the desk. "Well, of all the damned foolishness I ever heard of!"

Randy adjusted the window shade, poked the fire, and made small rustling noises.

Drake spoke finally. "It's no use, Randy, you've got to talk to me sooner or later. Might as well be now."

She came across the room and sat down beside him. "All right. What do you want to say?"

"I still wish you hadn't told Parris."

"How would you like it if something happened to Parris and he didn't let you know?"

Drake hesitated. "I don't know. I hadn't thought of it."

"Well, it's the same thing. Drake, he's your best friend."

"Go on with your wobbly, weak-kneed explanations!"

"That sounds more like you. You see, Drake, from Parris' cablegram how bad he feels that you didn't let him know sooner—about everything."

"Yeh. Maybe that was wrong."

"Well, then."

Drake picked up the message from the counterpane. He had almost worn it out since yesterday reading and rereading it. He looked at it and his mouth quivered a little.

"Gee, he's a great friend, Randy."

"Of course."

"But—"

"But what, now? What?"

"This last sentence."

"Yes, I know. What about it?"

"'You and Randy stick together till I get there. We'll work everything out'."

"I know it by heart," she said softly.

"Of course he doesn't understand."

"Doesn't understand what? What are you driving at Drake?"

She waited. He did not notice how pale she had become.

"I tell you, Randy, I—I remembered that if you had just a little money there—" His voice faded. "I've heard there was homes you could get into—maybe."

Randy's voice broke harshly against his last word. "Drake McHugh!"

"Why, what?"

"Would you—would you deliberately treat me that way, and Parris, too?"

"I—I don't—"

Drake was looking at Randy with an expression half desperate with his own emotion, and half a puzzled concern for her.

"Then listen carefully. Whatever you say, or however you feel—it's you and me hereafter—together—somehow."

The expression went out of Drake's face. A curious emptiness remained. The look frightened Randy.

"I want you to trust yourself entirely to me for a while until you are well and—" She bit her lip sharply. Almost she had said "up and around again."

Drake half smiled.

"But you see, honey—I can't ever be "well,' as you say."

"Drake. What has happened is terrible. But you are alive."

Drake turned his face to the wall. It was an old habit from his childhood, but Randy did not know that. She almost held her breath until he turned back again and looked at her.

"Drake, I'm going to tell you something, and I want you to listen until I have finished. It's first of all about what Parris said in that cablegram: 'You and Randy stick together till I get there.' We're going to do that. But I made up my own mind about that long before this—happened. Then after you got hurt I just had to think of how—that was all. Do you remember one time you said something about marrying me? Well, I made fun of the idea because I guess I'd been a little hurt. But later on when you came down here—remember the morning you came to ask Pa to help you get a job? I made up my mind that day that I'd marry you as soon as the right time came around. I knew I wanted to marry you—"

"Oh, for God's sake, Randy—how can you—?"

"Hush. You were to listen. So now the right time has come."

Drake flung his arms across his face, but Randy went on evenly.

"We'll get married, any time now, and then we'll work out some way what we'll do after ward."

Drake raised his arms and clutched the head of the bed. Then he turned his face to the wall again, but one hand reached out for hers.

Three days later Randy was hurrying about her housekeeping when Mr. Lawes called.

"Good morning, Miss."

"Good morning."

"I am Patterson Lawes. I believe Mr. Drake McHugh is here at present."

"Yes, he is. Won't you sit down?"

"Thank you. I have a little matter of business to talk over with him."

"I think Drake would want me to deal with it—whatever it is."

Mr. Lawes reached for his leather dispatch case. "I hardly think so, Miss—er—"

"I am Mrs. Drake McHugh, Mr. Lawes."

"I hadn't been advised of that, Mrs. McHugh." He arose and bowed slightly. "I didn't know Drake was married."

"We were married yesterday."

"But—God bless me, the boy hasn't any legs!"

"I didn't marry Drake because of his legs, Mr. Lawes. Suppose we hear about the business now?"

"Well—I have here, Mrs. McHugh, a communication that should be of great interest to both of you. I suppose it will help solve some problems—if you have any," he added hastily.

"What is it?"

He looked at her sharply.

"Were you expecting a communication from Mr. Parris Mitchell in Vienna?"

"I expect a letter soon. I had a cable from him. Drake had one also."

"Indeed. Did he know of Drake's condition?"

"I cabled him about it Tuesday."

"I see. Now, Mrs. McHugh—" He laid the papers on the table and explained briefly their purport. Randy listened with an increasing dismay.

"I shall leave these with you, er—Mrs. McHugh."

Randy shook her head. "I don't know how Drake is going to take this. I'm so afraid he may think I asked Parris for help."

"You didn't?"

"Certainly not! Drake and I could have managed without help."

Mr. Lawes rubbed the back of his head. He was completely perplexed. He did not understand a single phase of this whole crazy proceedings.

"The Authority on Authorities"

ENOUGH TO BID HIGHER

There are times when your hand does not justify your entering the bidding with an overcall at the range of one, but is good enough to bid two at a later stage. If your partner had done nothing but pass when your chance to bid one arrived, and the last call had been made by the opponent at your right, the bidding still is open. It is then possible that the opponent at your left has all of the remaining strength and your partner is blank. But, if a suit bid by the man at the left is then passed by the one at your right, you know the opponents are not extra strong, and that therefore your partner has something.

	♠ K 7 4 ♥ A K J ♦ J 4 3 2 ♣ J 10 9 2
♠ 10 6 ♥ 7 4 3 ♦ K 6 5 ♣ A K 8 5 4	N W E S	♠ Q 3 2 ♥ Q 10 8 6 5 ♦ Q 7 ♣ Q 6 3
	♠ A J 9 8 5 ♥ 9 2 ♦ A 10 9 8 ♣ J 7

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable)

West	North	East	South
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♥	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠

Leonard J. Wyeth, of the Union club in New York, sitting in the South position, gave a very splendid example on this deal of the advisability of making a bid based on deductions that his partner had a certain amount of strength.

After East had bid 1-Heart over his partner's 1-Club, it would have been highly dangerous for Mr. Wyeth to call 1-Spade in the South while vulnerable. The opponents might have been in a position to double him and hold him to about four tricks, perhaps setting him 800 points. But after West bid 2-Clubs and East passed this, he knew the other side could not be very strong. Hence he knew his partner had a fair amount of strength, so he then bid 2-Spades without trepidation.

Sure enough, his partner had some strength and raised to 3-Spades, being sure the suit was a five-carder, and Mr. Wyett took it to 4-Spades.

The reward was a nice game, as only two tricks were lost in clubs and one in diamonds, since the trump finesse worked.

Your Week-End Lesson.

If you have in the dummy four cards of a suit headed by the A-9-7, and in your own hand four headed by the K-8, what should you try to do in order to give yourself the best chance to avoid losing two tricks in the suit.

Tygers Trample Sandusky Streaks In Dual Track Meet

Sport Podge by REX HESS

By the time you read this today, Mansfielder Ed Chatlain should be well on his way to his new post at Long Beach, Cal., where he will be one of the physical instructors building sound bodies for Uncle Sam's navy.

All bubbling over with enthusiasm for his new job was the former Mansfield Tyger and Wittenberg college athletic star when he stopped for a chat with this department before starting on his long jaunt overland to the coast.

"You could have knocked me over with a mild sou'wester when I drew that Long Beach assignment," says Ed. "Among 40 of us moving out of Norfolk, Va., for our new jobs in the navy physical training setup, nearly all had put in for Long Beach, and only six were to be chosen. I had signed up for the California trip on the wildest chance, and never expected for a minute I'd get it.

"And then the guy lines us up and reads off the assignments, and starts out like this:

"'I'll read the best post first—Long Beach, Chatlain.' And I didn't hear a word after that."

* * *

Ed admits that the nearest he got to actually playing baseball at Norfolk with the great Bob Feller was a mild game of catch.

"Several of us went down to try out for the Norfolk team," says Ed, "and the first thing the guy asks us is, have we ever played AA ball, or even single A.

"And I had intended telling them I had played (three games) with Mansfield in the Ohio State league. No, I didn't mention it.

"That's the kind of a baseball team they've got down there at Norfolk, with Feller and Freddie Hutchinson leading the parade of big leaguers and big minor leaguers.

"And that's the kind of a football team they'll send to Great Lakes next fall, and the kind of basketball teams the navy will have all over the country next winter. You wait and see. The navy is getting its share of the outstanding athletes in this country.

"They used to call us Tunney's Tiny Tots, and even draft dodgers, but they're waking up to the fact now that we're really in there working. That 5 a. m. stretch of setting up exercises takes all the glamor out of this job."

In going to the coast, Chatlain is returning to the scene of his army air corps training of two months ago.

"We had three blackouts then," he recalls, "and I was on sentry duty for each one. For the first one, every light for miles around was out, except the one over my sentry post. We couldn't get it turned off.

"I had my Garand aimed and ready to shoot the light out when up comes the corporal with a cease firing order.

"And I never did get to shoot a rifle."

Boilermakers and Wildcats Leading

CHICAGO —(AP)— Purdue and Northwestern have replaced Illinois and Iowa as the pace setters in the young Big Ten conference baseball race.

Purdue, in its first league start yesterday, knocked off the Illini, 6 to 2. Northwestern's season's debut wound up in a wild 21 to 9 victory over Chicago.

Mel Ott Bounced By Umps

Boston Braves Keep Top Spot in National.

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

IF THERE'S a more startling sight in this young baseball season than the Boston Braves on top of the National league, it's Melvin Ott of the New York Giants being bounced from a game for arguing with an umpire.

It took Ott only four days to crash the circle once dominated by Leo Durocher and Frankie Frisch, and that amazing maneuver kept the Braves in their unfamiliar position at the head of the parade.

The score was 1 to 1 at Boston yesterday afternoon, with Hal Schumacher of the Giants and Dick Errickson of the Braves locked in a pitching duel.

Ott's home run in the top half of the fourth inning tied it up after Nanny Fernandez sent the Braves out in front with a four-bagger of his own, one of the two hits off Schumacher in three frames.

The Braves' Fernandez led off with a walk. Paul Waner forced the runner at second, and Umpire Ziggy Sears ruled that Waner reached first base ahead of the throw on the attempted double play.

Ott charged in from right field and Schumacher and Shortstop Billy Jurges, the Giants' captain, joined him in the argument.

Sears jerked his thumb toward the clubhouse and the Giants' new boss, who had been tossed out of only three games in 16 years as a major leaguer, headed for the showers—loser of the first debate in his managerial career. Sears also chased Jurges and Schumacher.

Harry Feldman, with no warm-up, replaced Schumacher. Three hits and a walk produced three runs and that was the ball game. Johnny Mize whittled the margin down for the Giants with a sixth-inning home run and a trio of blows added another tally in the seventh, but Rookie Johnny Sain stopped the Giants to save the 4-3 decision for the Braves.

Meanwhile, the New York Yankees and the St. Louis Browns continued along their unbeaten ways in the American league.

The world champion Yanks dropped the Boston Red Sox from the ranks of the undefeated with a 1-0 shutout, Charlie Keller's single scoring the run. Ernie Bonham of the Yankees and Oscar Judd of the Sox both went the route. Boston collected six hits to New York's five. It was the Yanks' fourth victory in a row.

The Browns kept pace with the champions by nosing out the Detroit Tigers, 7-6, although they also were outhit, 12-10.

At Cleveland, Ted Lyons pitched the Chicago White Sox to a 1-0 decision over the Indians. Bill Knickerbocker's tenth inning home run gave the Athletics a 5-4 victory over the Washington Senators at Philadelphia after Bob Johnson had brought the A's from behind with a tying homer in the ninth.

The Brooklyn Dodgers downed the Philadelphia Phils, 7-1, as Johnny Allen hurled six-hit ball, and the Pittsburgh Pirates tripped the St. Louis Cardinals, 3-2.

The Chicago Cubs cashed in on Johnny Vander Meer's wildness to squeeze out a 3-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

SAROF SETS PACE FOR EMPIRE LOOP

Comes Back For Decision

Pastor Gets Off Floor To Defeat Jim Bivins.

By RAY BLOSSER

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Jimmy Bivins dynamited a surprised Bob Pastor to the floor twice last night in the first round of their Cleveland arena fight—but before warfare ended tricky Robert turned things into just another warmup for his expected summer shot at Joe Louis.

Entering the ring 11-5 favorite and with a weight advantage of nearly seven pounds over the Cleveland Negro, Pastor quickly discovered he couldn't be careless with the man who recently made light heavyweight champion Gus Lesnevich look silly in a non-title go.

Left-right-left and Robert hit the rosin for a count of two. Only a half-minute later, two snappy lefts sent him down again, this time for three seconds.

"I wasn't hurt, I was just surprised," the heavyweight contender explained later.

The Saratoga Springs, N. Y., scrapper lost the second round, too, while recovering from those jarring blows. Then he whaled away at Bivins' mid-section, gave as good as he took and on the Associated Press score sheet, won seven of the remaining eight stanzas, with the fifth even.

Bob's weight of 183 pounds against the loser's 176¼ didn't hurt him as he won his 12th scrap in a row. It took Referee Joe Sedley's ballot for the 2-1 official decision, since the judges split in their verdict.

Derringer Goes After 200 Wins

CHICAGO —(AP)— Big Paul Derringer, striving for the 200-games-won mark this year, today went after the first of a score of victories he needs against Claude Passeau of the Chicago Cubs.

Paul showed his oldtime form in spring training, but death of his baby son and illness of his little daughter separated him from the club for most of the week before the season opened.

Derringer won't have the hitting support of rightfielder Ival Goodman. Goody was struck in the right elbow by a thrown ball in practice yesterday. X-rays failed to show a fracture, but the arm was badly swollen.

Jimmy Gleeson started in Goodman's place yesterday when poor fielding support and too many walks beat Johnny Vander Meer 3-2.

Rookie Bert Haas had another error, a wild throw, and Lonnie Frey coupled a misplay with Haas in the fifth to give the Cubs an unearned run. Two singles and a walk filled the bases for the Cubs in the seventh, and Vandy walked one run across while Lou Novikoff chased another in by a long fly.

This Run Spoiled Opener for Indians

Myrll Hoag of the Chicago White Sox slides across home plate to score the lone run which put the Cleveland Indians on the losing end of a 1 to 0 score in their opening game in Cleveland. Umpire McGowan and Indian Catcher Desautels are at the plate.

Bagby Seeks Second Win

Harder's Arm Holds Up But Mates Don't Hit.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Jim Bagby the Indians' only victory pitcher of this year, was called upon today to repeat his performance against Southpaw Edgar Smith and the Chicago White Sox—1 to 0 victors in the Tribe's home opener yesterday.

Bagby, making his first attempt to go the full route, weakened in the ninth of the season's opener at Detroit and had to be relieved, but gained credit for the Tribe's only 1942 victory.

Roly-Poly Smith, a tough nut for Redskin batters in past years, was Manager Jimmy Dykes' pitching choice.

The Chisox triumph yesterday was the result of masterful hurling in the pinches.

Forty-one-year-old Ted Lyons scattered the Tribe's seven hits to outpitch Mel Harder, testing his veteran arm after an operation last fall.

Harder allowed four hits in seven innings before retiring for a pinch hitter.

The Chisox only run came in the second inning when Johnny Lodigiani singled home Myril Hoag who had doubled with one out.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(Wide World)—Any of you guys who think baseball won't go right on through the season may be interested to hear that Judge Landis already has been dickering with the radio folks on world series broadcasting right.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

Desk Morse, St. Johnsbury, (Vt.) Caledonian-Record: "One of the Boston papers carried a note the other day that the Braves were wondering if, when they got home, they would find that the home plate had been moved. Didn't they have enough trouble last season crossing the platter without their bosses putting the darned thing in an unfamiliar spot?"

SERVICE DEPT.

It's back to college for Chief Boatswain's Mate Joe Zeller, former Indiana and Big league grid great. He has been assigned to run the physical education program for Marquette's Naval R. O. T. C. unit . . . Pvt. John R. Ranko of Fort Lee, Va., warns not to overlook the Fort Lee baseball team, which includes Porter Vaughn of the Athletics, Clarence "Soup" Campbell of the Indians, Jack Sanford, who hit .325 for Chattanooga in 1940 after being farmed out by the Senators, and a flock of other good players . . . The navy evidently knows how to make use of the talents of all those football coaches who are training to run the pre-flight school athletic programs. After they leave Annapolis, a lot of them will put in a week or two on recruiting duty.

Misses Head Pin And Singles Top

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Two seven-pin counts in his final game cost George Ludeman, 41-year-old Fort Wayne, Ind., machine operator, the singles leadership in the American Bowling congress tournament.

Missing the headpin twice, Ludeman wound up with a 745 total, just one pin under the leading score rolled Sunday by Nelson Burton of St. Louis, to capture second place in the singles, the only change among the leaders in any event yesterday.

* * *

With an all-events score of 1817, Walter Ward of Cleveland skidded out of first place in the 10-year averages and permitted Ned Day of West Allis, Wis., to take over the leadership again. Day's average is 203 plus 12 pins, while Ward's is 202 plus 59 pins for 90 games.

Score Fourth Victory Of Year Over Old Foe

Biggest Crowd In History For Dual Meet Sees Twilight Event

MANSFIELD HIGH'S TYGERS made their 1941-42 supremacy over Sandusky's once-vaunted Blue Streaks complete last evening with a decisive 76 1-3 to 41 2-3 track victory at Stadium field.

That made it four Mansfield victories over Sandusky in one school year—one in football, two in basketball, and one in track.

And it kept the Tyger track record for the spring still in the undefeated class, with a Newark tie and victories over Columbus East and the Streaks.

Staged as the first high school twilight meet of the season in Ohio, and also at a "Dads' Night" affair, the meet drew the largest dual meet crowd in the history of track at Mansfield high school. And even though the crowd couldn't have been much over 300, it was an encouraging turnout for a sport which has had difficulty enticing 50 fans to the sidelines.

There never was much doubt as to the outcome of the meet after Mansfield made a clean sweep of the nine points in the opening high hurdles.

The Tygers also scored all nine points in the mile run, shot put, and high jump, and racked up an 8-1 margin in the low hurdles and broad jump.

Five of the Sandusky points came in the 880 relay, which Mansfield won on the track, but lost through disqualification on a foul, when a Tyger runner stepped in front of a Streak runner on the stick exchange.

Surprisingly good time for this early in the season was set by the Mansfield mile relay team in 3 minutes, 50 seconds, an event which Sandusky finished in something over 4 minutes. Jim Burrage took a 40-yard lead in the first lap of this event, and Browning, Menke and Yontz increased the gap to 140 yards at the finish.

The mile run also saw the Tygers completely outclassing the Streaks. Jore wheeled the distance in 4:56.2 with a 40-yard margin over his nearest Tyger rival, Bob Timmons, and then came two more Tygers with the fourth one holding a 40-yard margin over the first of the Streaks.

* * *

Elroy Lightnin' Jones again was the big point winner of the meet, taking firsts in the shot put, broad jump and 220-yard dash for 15 points. He also anchored the 880 relay team into first place, only to see the event lost on a foul.

TELLS OF GRIM LAST HOURS IN BATAAN BATTLE

Correspondent Describes How Disease, Hunger Helped Japs to Win.

sistance was hopeless. So it had been all along, but now the end was at hand.

The pitifully few men who could be withdrawn were taken to Corregidor fortress in Manila bay. The thousands who were left waited for the Japanese.

On the night of April 9, after a sleepless night, I watched the nearby wooded tip of Bataan peninsula from Corregidor.

The firing went on intermittently. Then it began to dwindle. There was an occasional flurry of charges at the last. Not even the Japanese planes bothered to attack any more, and there was silence.

The Bataan army which was beaten had been starving slowly for weeks. It was ridden with malaria and dysentery. In the last days there were 10,000 patients in the two field hospitals; another 10,000 troops had malaria but were able to stick it out; some of these had dysentery also.

Rations had been cut in half in January. They were cut in half again in the last weeks.

Then the quinine began to give out, and the rainy season was coming to mosquito-infested Bataan, one of the malaria pest holes of the world.

I saw the men in Bataan day by day through all the siege. They began the fight as seasoned, strong, carefree fighting men; at the end every man had lost weight and they were dragging themselves by will power alone into action.

They had eaten all the carabao, (the Philippines buffalo) on the peninsula; they had eaten the horses of the 26th cavalry and most of the pack mules. They had eaten stewed monkey and still there was not enough food.

In Bataan, I saw soldiers pay as much as five pesos, $2.50, for a single cigaret. I saw men form queues so that each could take a puff at the one cigaret which one of them had.

These men are now prisoners of the Japanese.

Among them, I believe, is Capt. Arthur Wermuth, of Chicago, "the one man army," who is credited with killing more than 100 Japanese single handed.

The Japanese started by intensifying their bombing. Dive bombers shrieked down on the front lines all day. The enemy brought a new type of twin-motored bomber into action to bomb the rear with explosives and incendiaries.

Then they began raiding by night as well as day and the troops who had been hungry and sick were denied the last boon of men in extremity, sleep.

Next heavy artillery opened up, and then the pick of the enemy army crashed into the American and Filipino lines.

They were thrown back again and again. But it could not last and they sent a spearhead through the right-center of our line.

They started night infantry attacks.

One of these was a terrible bayonet charge fought hand to hand without quarter by the ghastly bright light of the moon.

The American-Filipino line gave as it had to, back to the reserve resistance line.

They tried to hold the path to Mt. Sumat where the American-Filipino forces had their greatest artillery observation post.

It was a pitiful sight to see these fine troops, who had been called again and again to plug a weak spot, walking back up there, tired to the point of exhaustion, going in with their casualty-thinned line to met fresh, well-fed, well-armed Japanese. They had to walk because there was no gasoline for trucks.

About 300 of the 31st got to Corregidor, out of a regiment of 3,000 at battle strength.

All the men fought well. Illinois, Ohio, Kentucky, California can be proud of their national guard tank men. They fought like devils and they killed their share of Japanese.

STRICKEN AFTER LONG ILLNESS

KILLBUCK—Former postmistress here for a number of years, Miss Hattie L. Duncan, 89, died at her home Friday following a long illness.

A life-long resident of Holmes county she was a graduate of Oberlin college and Painesville academy. She was a member of the Killbuck Methodist church and a charter member of Holmes Rebekah lodge.

Surviving are two nieces, Mrs. William Bucy and Mrs. Lola Bassett, with whom she made her home.

LAVAL TO TELL FATE OF FRANCE

Nation Seethes With Unrest; Attack on Syria Hinted In Washington.

as if he turned over the French fleet to Germany—at the risk of a popular revolt.

The official Vichy news agency published a four-page eulogy of the new premier, picturing him as a heroic figure and asserting that if the nation's leaders had listened to him in the winter of 1940, at a secret session of the senate foreign affairs committee, they "would have saved France from defeat and invasion."

While the United States officially catalogued the Laval government as a puppet of Germany and U. S. Ambassador William D. Leahy prepared to return home "for consultations," reliable sources saw the possibility that Laval might be held in leash by the bitter personal feud between him and Admiral Jean Darlan.

Under the new regime, Darlan is not only heir-designate to Marshal Petain as chief of state but also commander of France's land, sea and air forces.

EXCEEDS AXIS

United Nations Output Past Turning Point.—Nelson.

NEW YORK—(AP)— The United States has "passed the turning point" in war production and the output of the United Nations today exceeds that of the Axis powers—that is the statement of Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the war production board.

"We can see daylight ahead in our whole war production effort," he told the American Society of Newspaper Editors last night.

Nelson coupled his optimism with caution, however, pointing out that today's production figures do not mean "that we are going to win the war next month or that we can start out tomorrow to take the offensive."

"It is safe to predict" that by the end of the year the Allies shall have overcome the accumulated reserve built up by Japan since 1930 and by Germany since 1933, Nelson told the editors.

HOLMES COUNTY RESIDENT DIES

Harry Close, 64, Succumbs After Long Illness.

MILLERSBURG — A life-long resident of Holmes county, Harry Close, 64, a farmer, of west of here, died at his home early today following a lingering illness.

Surviving are his daughter, Beulah, at home; a step daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Achamier, of west of Millersburg; a step-son, Elbert Steele, of Ravenna, and three brothers, Welker, of Akron, Glenn of Cleveland, and Clifford in California.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Monday at the Hunter funeral home. Rev. Ira Mathews, pastor of Millersburg Church of Christ will officiate. Burial will be in Millersburg cemetery.

THREE RECEIVE SCOUT AWARDS

Three members of Cub Pack No. 4 received advancement awards at the regular monthly meeting of the pack at the Central Methodist church, yesterday evening.

M. P. Henry, cubmaster of the pack, presented the lion badge to George Rogers, a gold arrow to Hugh Meilinger, and the lion badge and a gold arrow to David Marks.

During the meeting Paul Snyder, neighborhood commissioner, explained the reorganization program for the pack and a motion picture, "The Scout Trail to Citizenship," was shown by Clifford Hartnett.

A brief program was presented by Shirley Lay, who played several accordion selections, and Marilyn Sutter who tap danced.

INJURED WHEN HIT BY AUTO

Paul Heichel, 27, of 66 South Adams street, suffered fractures of five ribs on his left side early today when struck by an automobile while he was walking across North Park street at North Diamond street.

M. N. Bishop, 18, of 373 South Diamond, driver of the car which struck Heichel told police that he thought Heichel had paused to let him pass but that Heichel suddenly ran in front of the car.

Heichel was taken to General hospital and treated but was not admitted as a patient.

CITY TO GET DEFENSE FUND

Mansfield Expected to Share In $2,000,000 'Melon' Which Bricker Allows.

in Mansfield would be for protection of the city waterworks system, and that this could be paid from the surplus in the waterworks fund.

The money would be spent by local defense councils in each community. Although every municipality would share in the appropriation, no complete list of the amount for each was available immediately.

The money could be used for no other purpose than civilian defense.

Action by the governor came after a survey of civilian defense needs in 60 communities. The state administration had been criticized sharply by some local officials for its failure to provide defense funds.

The money comes from poor relief funds appropriated at the last session of the legislature but not needed because relief rolls have declined in the last 18 months.

The governor will appear personally before the state board of control Monday to ask transfer of the relief money to the director of welfare to be used for "defense relief."

While poor relief expenditures by the state must be matched dollar-for-dollar by local subdivisions, the subdivisions will not have to match the $2,000,000 to be distributed for civilian defense, the governor said.

He pointed out that poor relief costs have dropped nearly $2,000,000 in the last year and a half, and that cities and counties will have a total of $4,000,000 to spend for defense purposes because of this state grant.

RITES MONDAY

600 WITNESS SHELBY HIGH PRODUCTION

Capacity Crowd Sees Second Performance of 'As You Like It.'

SHELBY — A near capacity audience of 600 witnessed the second performance of the variety show, "As You Like It," Friday night in Shelby High school auditorium. The production was sponsored by the high school music and speech groups.

The scene of the show was laid in a radio studio with Raymond Zeiters serving as the announcer and Sally Van Horn and JoAnn Fish as mistresses of ceremonies. Music for the "Tobias T. Totalles Twentieth Century" hit parade which made up the second half of the program was played by the high school swing band.

The play was directed by Music Supervisor H. G. Koerber and Speech Supervisor Leonard Linsenmayer. Proceeds from the event will be used to sponsor activities of the speech and music groups at the school.

The committees that arranged the preliminary work were: Tickets, Sue Dowds, JoAnn Stock, Janice Stephan, Lois Pittenger, Mary McHugh, JoAnn Fish, Betty Barnett and Jean Beach; and advertising, Sally Van Horn, James Hohler, JoAnn Fish, Sue Dowds, Betty Barnett, Kathleen Wilkinson, Harry Crawford, Dick Sawyer, Yvonne Brumback, Bob Schiffer and Jeannette Freeman.

DEATH CLAIMS W. G. DARLING, 70

2—Card of Thanks

WITH REGARD TO A CARD OF THANKS

Very often a Card of Thanks in The News-Journal meets a need which can hardly be solved in any other way. Not only is it a gracious expression of gratitude to those who have sent floral tributes, but also courteously acknowledges the service and kindness of the many to whom a personal note of thanks cannot well be mailed, or whose names or addresses are not known.

A "Card of Thanks" can now be arranged by telephone: Dial 4251-6, ask for Miss Lane or Miss Stone, either will be glad to render whatever service and advice you need.

AFTER SOME OF THE PLACES I'VE BEEN AND THINGS I'VE SEEN, I'M NOT VERY SQUEAMISH--BUT THIS DIGGING UP THROUGH ALL THESE SKELETONS!
WE SHOULD CLOSE OUR MINDS TO ALL BUT OUR FINAL GOAL- SOON WE MUST BREAK THROUGH-
4-18-42
YOU'RE RIGHT! TH' MAIN THING IS TO GET THROUGH AND RESCUE THAT POOR OLD GUY, BEFORE IT'S TOO LATE-
HEY! "DOC" ELDEEN AN' MAC ARE GETTIN' TH' OLD GUY UP-- MUST BE FIXIN' TO TAKE HIM SOMEWHERE-
TAKE OFF HIS CHAINS, MAC-- HE WON'T BE RUNNING MUCH- TOO WEAK- BUT HE MIGHT AS WELL WALK-
YEAH, ZANEY- YOU AN' ME ARE GOIN' FOR A NICE LITTLE WALK--OUT TO TH' TOOL SHED- I'LL BE COMIN' BACK! HA! HA! HA!
HAROLD GRAY
YOU'RE NOT FUNNY, MAC! SEE IF YOU CAN HANDLE THIS WITHOUT BUNGLING-
HA! SO NOW YOU PLAN TO MURDER ME, EH? WELL, I'M NOT DEAD YET!

NO--GOING TO READ UP ON THIS CASE FOR A LITTLE WHILE. EVERYTHING'S QUIET.
DON'T YOU WANT ME TO STAY, COLONEL?
OH, NO, BUT I'LL HAVE A LOT OF DICTATING FOR YOU IN THE MORNING, MY DEAR!
JUST THE SAME, AFTER WHAT THE COLONEL TOLD ME ABOUT THAT MAN, I THINK HE'S ABSOLUTELY FOOLHARDY TO STAY HERE BY HIMSELF!
AHA! THERE GOES THE GIRL HOME! NOW'S MY CHANCE! HE'LL BE ALONE IN HIS OFFICE!

MR. GUMP IS NOT AT HOME JUST NOW, SIR-WOULD YOU CARE TO LEAVE A MESSAGE?
NO-NO- THIS IS A PERSONAL VISIT-I'LL CALL AGAIN!
4-18
A STRANGE LOOKING MAN WAS HERE TO SEE YOU THIS AFTERNOON-HE WAS TALL AND SKINNY- AND HIS FEET WERE SORT OF QUEER- LOOKED WRONG-
WHAT? GREAT GRAVY!
THE MAN WITH THE TWO LEFT FEET! I'VE BEEN LOOKING FOR HIM FOR DAYS! WHAT DID HE SAY? WHAT DID HE WANT?
HE SAID IT WAS PERSONAL
DIDN'T HE LEAVE HIS CALLING CARD, OR ANYTHING TO IDENTIFY HIM?!
BY JINGO! HE DID LEAVE SOMETHING! LOOK--

TOKYO RAIDS BOOST STOCK MART SPIRIT

Recovery Tendencies Seen as Leaders Move Up to Point Gains.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market showed recovery tendencies today and various leaders moved up fractions to a point or so from Friday's closing levels which in many cases, represented low marks for a number of years.

Initial improvement was attributed to the effect on sentiment of Tokyo's admission of air raids on her territory. In the higher group were Union Carbide, Standard Oil (NJ), Pennsylvania, Chrysler, Douglas, General Electric and U. S. Steel.

Holding attention in financial circles were plans for next week's scheduled public offering of Amerisan Tobacco's $100,000,000 of debentures, which will be one of the year's most important transactions in the market for new securities. Underlying conditions for new security marketings have not been particularly favorable in recent months and if proposed arrangements are carried out in the tobacco company issue it may result, according to opinion in underwriting quarters, in establishing a little better atmosphere for securities markets generally.

THEATERS

Romantic Comedy.

The complications that arise when a night club singer takes refuge from the police by moving in with eight professors engaged in compiling an encyclopedia provide the action in the riotous comedy, "Ball of Fire," at the Ohio. Co-starring Gary Cooper and Barbara Stanwyck the picture introduces Miss Stanwyck as the singer who helps one professor with his definition of "slang" and then falls in love with him. Cooper plays the professor. Dana Andrews and Allen Jenkins are in the cast.

Spy Thriller.

Comedy, excitement and romance are combined in "The Lady Has Plans," the Madison attraction co-starring Paulette Goddard and Ray Milland. Lisbon furnishes the background where an ace newscaster portrayed by Milland and a girl reporter, enacted by Miss Goddard, attempt to outwit enemy agents who suspect the girl has secret plans drawn on her back in invisible ink. Roland Young, Albert Dekker, Margaret Hayes and Cecil Kellaway are others in the cast. "What's Cookin'," featuring Woody Herman's orchestra and a cast that includes Charles Butterworth, Billie Burke and Leo Carrillo, shares the bill.

Tarzan Picture.

"Tarzan's Secret Treasure," with John Weismuller and Maureen O'Sullivan opens Sunday at the Ritz. Shirley Temple plays her first grown-up role in "Kathleen," the second picture.

Espionage Drama.

Ilona Massey inspires a chase from Lisbon to New York by Scotland Yard and the FBI in her new picture, "International Lady," at the Park. George Brent represents the FBI and Basil Rathbone, Scotland Yard, in this spy thriller based upon a sabotage ring's efforts to cripple the flow of American planes to England. The blond singing star offers a brilliant aria in the picture that also features Marjorie Gateson and Gene Lockhart. "North to the Klondike," with Brod Crawford, is the second attraction.

Ice Spectacle.

Sonja Henie is starred in another ice spectacle "Everything Happens to Me," showing today and Sunday at the Majestic. Ray Milland plays opposite the skater. Johnny Mack Brown in "The Masked Rider," is the co-feature.

RAF RAIDS HIT VITAL TARGETS

Augsburg Plant Blasted as Bombers Cross Channel For Seventh Day.

Nazis are using spring reserves in "a vain attempt" to achieve air superiority, Tass news agency reported today.

(German reports admitted an extensive aerial engagement over the Sea of Azov and Black sea areas, claiming the Luftwaffe had inflicted "considerable damage" to Russian Black sea ports.)

A supplement to the regular Russian high command communique said that Soviet forces destroyed 35 block houses, several gun batteries and machine gun nests, blew up two ammunition dumps, killed 700 German and captured a substantial quantity of booty in fighting on the Kalinin front.

The Red army also occupied several defense points on the central front, wiping out several hundred enemy soldiers and capturing much booty, the report said.

STAGES PARTY

Benefit Society to Celebrate 40th Anniversary Tonight.

The German Sick Benefit society of Mansfield will observe the 40th anniversary of its founding with a meeting and dance at 8 p. m. today in Germania hall.

Organized in April, 1902, the society is a Mansfield organization which pays weekly benefits to subscribers who are ill or injured and to their relatives in the event of death.

Scheduled to speak at the party tonight are Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston, Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, Mayor William J. Locke, and County Commissioner C. L. Mitchell.

The program will include singing by a German choir and dancing.

DEATH FOLLOWS LONG ILLNESS

A. J. Chamberlain Succumbs At Home; Rites Monday.

Andrew J. Chamberlain, 69, died last night at his home, 95 West Dickson avenue, after a lingering illness. He was born in Cincinnati on June 8, 1872.

Survivors are his widow, Anna; two sons, Albert of Akron and Lawrence Chamberlain of Mansfield, a brother, James Chamberlain of Cincinnati; and four grandchildren.

The body was removed to the Wappner Funeral home where services will be held Monday at 10 a. m. with Rev. Herman L. Gilbert officiating. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

INFANT DIES

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Freehafer Succumbs at Birth.

An infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Freehafer, 422 Hammond avenue, died at birth last night at General hospital. Besides the parents, she is survived by a brother, Allen Douglas, at home. The body was taken to the Wappner Funeral home and services were to be held at the grave today in Bellville cemetery.

POSTPONE RITES

SHELBY—Funeral services for Marion S. McCune, 86, who died Friday at a Mansfield rest home, have been postponed until 2 p. m. Wednesday at the Dye Funeral home because of the late arrival of a son, M. E. McCune, from Bell, Cal.

Rev. Arthur Staples, pastor of First Methodist church, will officiate.

News Briefs

Board to Meet—The Y. W. C. A. executive board will meet Monday at 7:30 p. m. for the regular April meeting.

To Further Plans—Plans for a recreation program for employed girls will be considered by the Y. W. C. A. business and industrial committee Tuesday at the building at 7:30 p. m.

Auto Damaged—Gerald Batcher, Lexington, told police last night that his automobile had been damaged by a hit-skip motorist while it was parked on Park avenue east near Margaret's Inn.

Named Humane Agents—Misses Helen and Florence Workman, 521 Park avenue west, had been appointed humane agents for the Mansfield Angell Refuge society today by Probate Judge Stuart H. Cramer. The appointments were made at the request of Charles L. Arting, president of the society.

Sale Approved—Sale of two lots in the Mansfield area by the Christian Science Pleasant View home to Helen Blackman for $10 each was approved today by Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston. The court also authorized the transfer of a third property under a land contract.

Reports Dog Bite—Marilyn Larson, 15, of 625 Bigelow road, reported to police yesterday that she had been bitten on the right foot by a dog while she was riding her bicycle on Brae Burn avenue. Police ordered Wayne Dumas, 617 Brae Burn avenue, owner of the dog, to tie it for a 10-day period.

Prowler Sought—Mansfield police were called to the parsonage of the Grace Gospel church, 410 West Fifth street, late yesterday after a resident in the vicinity reported that a prowler had entered the parsonage. The parsonage has not been occupied for several months. Police were unable to find anyone on the premises when they arrived.

Youth Sentenced—A 17-year-old Mansfield colored youth was sentenced to the Mansfield reformatory yesterday by Judge Stuart H. Cramer in Juvenile court after the youth was found guilty of the theft of $40 from his employer, a Mansfield pool room operator. Because of the defendant's age, the sentence was for indeterminate period.

WELL, LISTEN... WAR DOPE, VERY USEFUL TO H&H — HITLER AND HIROHITO — HAS BEEN LEAKING OUT IN BIG GOBS WE SUSPECT ONE OF THE FOREIGN "EXILES"
HM M..
WE CAN'T EXAMINE THESE EXILES TOO CLOSELY, FOR REASONS OF STATE .. I'D LIKE YOU TO DO SOMETHING FOR ME — STRICTLY AS A PERSONAL FAVOR!
SURE! WHAT IS IT, X-9?
UNDER THE AUSPICES OF YOUR PAPER, ED, I'D LIKE YOU TO ORGANIZE A PATRIOTIC RALLY, THE GUESTS OF HONOR TO BE THE MOST PROMINENT OF THE FOREIGN "EXILES"
I GET IT, X-9..
YOU SUSPECT THAT ONE OF THEM IS ACTING AS AN "EAR" FOR THE AXIS .FOR DIPLOMATIC REASONS. THEY CAN'T BE TOO CLOSELY INVESTIGATED RIGHT?
THAT'S IT!
I'LL HAVE AN UNOFFICIAL LOOK SEE FIRST.
AND BY THE WAY —
I UNDERSTAND ONE OF THEM HAS TAKEN OVER A FORMER EMBASSY MANSION WITH HIS CONSENT, THE RALLY MIGHT BE HELD THERE!
THAT'S PRINCE CAESAR'S PLACE. OKAY. I THINK I CAN SWING IT, X-9!
PRINCE CAESAR, THE EDITOR OF ONE OF THE PAPERS WISHES TO SPEAK TO YOU ABOUT A PATRIOTIC RALLY TO BE HELD FOR PROMINENT EXILES LIVING IN WASHINGTON ..
THANK YOU, CHARLES.
AND WE'D LIKE YOU TO BE ONE OF THE GUESTS OF HONOR!
DELIGHTED TO ATTEND! WOULD YOU HONOR ME FURTHER BY PERMITTING THIS RALLY TO — A FEW MINUTES LATER
...AND HE WANTS IT TO BE HELD AT HIS PLACE? NICE WORK, ED. THANKS!
X-9 IS SEEKING TO UNCOVER AN AXIS "LISTENING POST IN WASHINGTON .. NOW, IN THE LOBBY OF A CAPITAL HOTEL —
I HAVE A RESERVATION HERE FOR A SUITE.
THE NAME IS MISS SALEM!
I'M SORRY, MISS SALEM WE'RE TERRIBLY CROWDED THE BEST I CAN DO IS —
BUT I MUST HAVE A SUITE! I HAVE MY SECRETARY — MY MAID — SORRY
PLEASE CALL THE MANAGER! YOU ARE WASTING MY TIME!
I'M THE MANAGER OF THIS HOTEL.. WHAT SEEMS TO BE WRONG?
I'M MISS SALEM.. I RESERVED A SUITE — PLEASE SHOW ME UP TO IT!
AWFULLY SORRY, MISS SALEM! WE'VE NEVER BEEN SO CROWDED HERE IN WASHINGTON BEFORE.
VERY WELL! YOU CAN BE SURE THAT MY FRIEND, PRINCE CAESAR, WILL HEAR OF THIS!
PRINCE CAESAR? ER..LET ME SEE ..I WAS SAVING A SUITE FOR SENATOR WILLS... I'M SURE HE WON'T MIND IF I PUT HIM ELSEWHERE!
THANK YOU VERY MUCH ..I'LL BE HERE FOR SEVERAL WEEKS..PERHAPS LONGER.
JUST CALL ON ME FOR ANYTHING YOU WISH, MISS SALEM!

BIG SISTER

MY! IT'S SO QUIET YOU'D THINK NOBODY WAS HOME; BUT I GUESS THAT'S JUST BECAUSE THE BOYS ARE MINDING THE BABY.
Copr. 1942, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.
A FINE NURSE HE MAKES! LOOK AT HIM! SOUND ASLEEP! AND THE BABY- THE BABY-
BUDDY! BUDDY!! WAKE UP! WAKE UP! WHERE'S THE BABY? THE BABY?
HUH? OH! OH, YEAH! JASPER. HE'S RIGHT- RIGHT- SAY!! WHERE IS HE?
FORGRAVE
QUICK, BUDDY! WHAT HAVE YOU DONE WITH JASPER?
GOSH, BETH! I DIDN'T DO ANYTHING WITH HIM. HE WAS RIGHT HERE IN HIS CRADLE A MINUTE AGO!
I GUESS I MUST HAVE DOZED OFF A BIT.
YOU GUESS? BUDDY WOOD, YOU WERE SOUND ASLEEP WHEN I CAME IN. OH, DEAR! WHERE IS THE BABY? GET BUSY! HUNT FOR HIM!
Copr. 1942 King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.
NOW DON'T GET EXCITED BETH. HE'S AROUND HERE SOMEWHERE!
BUT HOW COULD HE GET OUT OF HIS CRIB. HE CAN'T DO THAT BY HIMSELF! LOOK FOR HIM! LOOK EVERYWHERE!
FORGRAVE
BUDDY! JASPER'S NOT HERE! HE'S NOT IN THE HOUSE AT ALL!!
I'M BEGINNING TO BELIEVE SO, MYSELF! BUT-BUT WHERE-
THERE'S ONLY ONE ANSWER. HE'S BEEN KIDNAPPED! TAKEN WHILE YOU SLEPT! OH, BUDDY, HOW COULD YOU HAVE BEEN SO CARELESS?
BUT I ONLY DOZED OFF FOR A MINUTE! I DON'T SEE HOW-
Copr. 1942, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.
DON'T STAND THERE LIKE A BUMP ON A LOG. CALL THE POLICE! CALL THE POLICE!
WAIT! GIVE ME A CHANCE!
FORGRAVE
YEP, WE'RE FROM HEADQUARTERS! WHAT'S WRONG OUT HERE?
IT'S JASPER! THE BABY! OUR BABY! THAT IS-HE ISN'T OURS -BUT HE'S DISAPPEARED!
WHOSE BABY?
OURS! - HE'S NOT EXACTLY OURS, BUT HE'S THE SAME AS OURS! OH, DON'T YOU UNDERSTAND?
BLESSED IF I DO, YET!
WAIT A MINUTE. LET'S GET THIS STRAIGHT. NOW, NOW YOU SAY YOUR BABY-
NO, NOT OURS! YES, HE IS TOO! WE HAD HIM! NOW HE'S GONE!
NOW, MISS, QUIET DOWN A BIT, SO WE CAN GET THIS RIGHT!
SEEMS AS IF SOMEBODY'S BABY IS MISSING, SARGE!
NOW, YOUNG MAN, WHEN YOU WERE HERE WITH THE BABY DID ANYBODY COME LURKING ABOUT?
NO, SIR. OH - WELL, A MISS SNOOPLY CALLED TO SEE THE BABY, BUT SHE WASN'T LURKING.
Copr. 1942 King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.
H'M! HARDLY LIKELY A NEIGHBOR WOULD TAKE THE CHILD. STILL YOU CAN'T TELL. I'LL STEP OVER AND HAVE A LOOK.
WHEN SHE LEFT YOU WERE ALONE WITH THE BABY?
NO, SIR, NOT ALONE!
DONNIE WAS WITH ME. MAYBE HE SAW SOMEONE AROUND - LET'S ASK HIM. HEY! WHERE IS HE?
I HAVEN'T SEEN HIM SINCE I CAME HOME! OH, HEAVEN HELP US! DON'T SAY HE'S GONE, TOO!
SON, THIS BEGINS TO LOOK SERIOUS; WITH BOTH THE BABY AND DONNIE GONE
YOU- YOU DON'T THINK THEY'RE KIDNAPPED, DO YOU?
H'M! WHAT ELSE CAN WE THINK? THEY'RE GONE AND THE BOY WOULD HAVE NO REASON TO RUN OFF WITH JASPER.
LAWSEE. NO!
AND MISTER! KIDNAPPING IS A CRIME, ISN'T IT?
IT'S NEXT DOOR TO MURDER. THAT'S HOW BAD IT IS!
OH, GOLLEE NED!

SWEET CORN

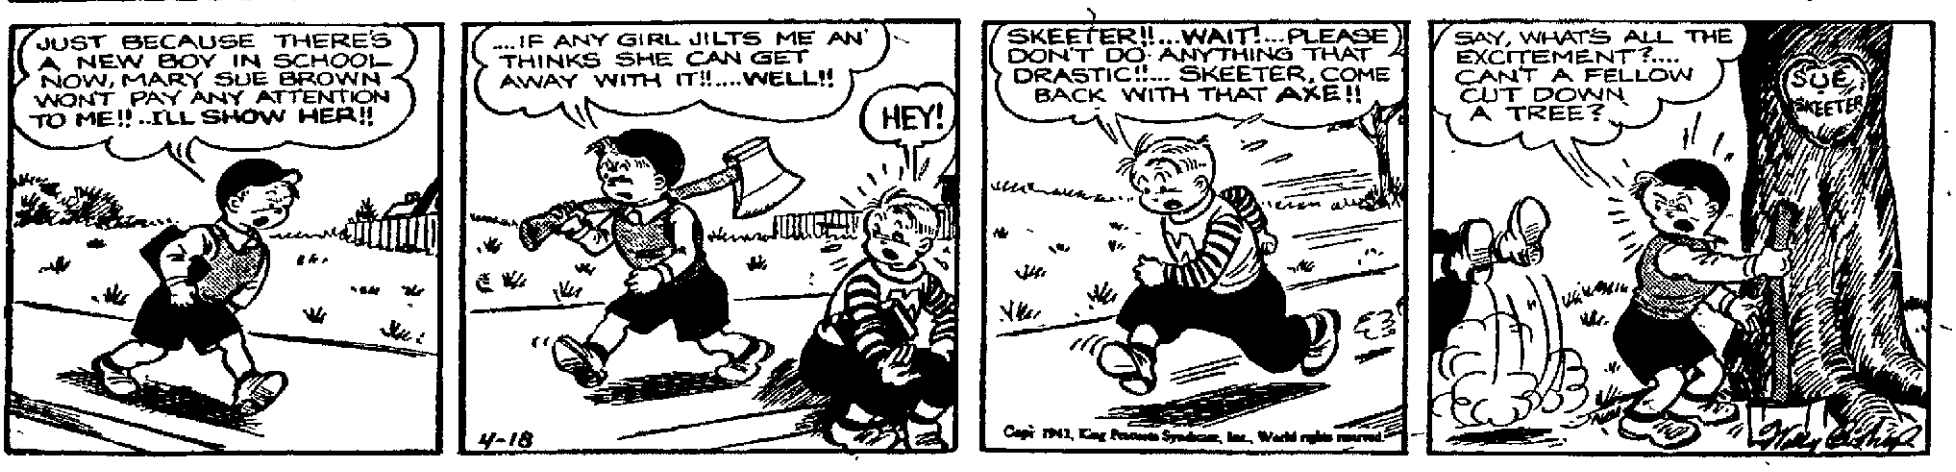
YOU GOT FORTY.... GOSH, WILBERT... I GOT NINETY!!
WILBERT GOT FORTY IN HIS ARITHMETIC TEST AND I GOT NINETY!! . WHAT A SAP I AM!! . JUST A DUMB GUY!!
NINETY SOUNDS PLENTY GOOD TO ME!!
Copr. 1942, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.
BUT WILBERT'S BEEN DOING MY PROBLEMS FOR ME EVERYTIME EXCEPT THIS TEST. . THIS TIME, I WORKED THEM ALL ALONE!
SO?
WELL, LOOK HOW SMART I COULD HAVE BEEN RIGHT ALONG!!
4-17



JUST BECAUSE THERE'S A NEW BOY IN SCHOOL NOW, MARY SUE BROWN WON'T PAY ANY ATTENTION TO ME!! ..I'LL SHOW HER!!
...IF ANY GIRL JILTS ME AN' THINKS SHE CAN GET AWAY WITH IT!!....WELL!!
HEY!

LITTLE ANNIE ROONEY

GEE, HANNA - I WISH I COULD SEE UNDERGROUND - THE TOPS OF MY CARROTS ARE NICE AN' GREEN, BUT I WISH I KNEW HOW THE BOTTOMS LOOK CAREFUL, ANNIE - IF YOU SCRATCH THE ROOT YOU'LL HURT THE LITTLE CARROT - IF IT'S THERE -
OH! I KIN SEE A TINY LITTLE CARROT GROWING!!
IT'S JUST A TEENY-WEENY LITTLE CARROT NOW - IT LOOKS JUST LIKE A LOVELY LITTLE BABY, ALL COVERED UP ASLEEP IN ITS CRADLE
DARRELL McCLURE 4-13
NOW, ALL WE GOTTA DO IS WATCH OUT FOR BUGS AN' WEEDS UNTIL OUR CARROTS ARE GROWN - GEE, I KIN HARDLY WAIT!
OH, HANNA - WHAT ARE YOU LAFFIN' AT NOW?
I WAS JUST THINKING - WOULDN'T IT BE COMICAL IF ALL KIDS HAD TO RAISE VEGETABLES THAT LOOKED LIKE THEM
YOU KNOW - LITTLE KIDS COULD RAISE PEAS - TALL, SKINNY KIDS COULD RAISE STRING BEANS -
FAT KIDS LIKE ME COULD RAISE PUMPKINS AND WATERMELONS - THAT WOULD BE LOTSA FUN -
- IF THEY WERE TOO BIG FOR ME TO LIFT, I'D GET A BIG STICK AND ROLL MY CROP TO MARKET JUST LIKE YOU WOULD ROLL A HOOP
DARRELL McCLURE 4-14
HA, HA - LOOK AT THAT LITTLE KID PLAYING LIKE SHE'S A DRUNKEN MAN
DON'T LAUGH, HANNA - SHE ISN'T PLAYIN' - LOOK! SHE'S FALLIN' DOWN
I'M SCARED, ANNIE - IS SHE DEAD?
I'M SCARED, TOO - BUT SHE ISN'T DEAD - SHE JUST LOOKS TERRIBLE SICK
YOU WATCH HER - I'LL RUN QUICK AN' TELL MR. OLIVER!
AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT?
NO - THE CHILDREN SAW HER STAGGER AND FALL UNCONSCIOUS ON THE HIGHWAY
DARRELL McCLURE 4-15
A STRANGE ROOM - HOW DID I GET HERE?? OH, NOW I REMEMBER - THE POOR LITTLE SICK GIRL WHO FAINTED ON THE ROAD YESTERDAY
WAKE UP, HANNA - WAKE UP!
OH - GOOD MORNING, ANNIE - DID THE BREAKFAST BELL RING YET?
YES - WE'RE IN MR. OLIVER'S PRIVATE HOSPITAL - REMEMBER THE LITTLE SICK GIRL WE BROUGHT HERE YESTERDAY?
YES - BUT WHY ARE WE IN THE HOSPITAL?
GOOD - THE FEVER IS SUBSIDING - I FEARED IT MIGHT BE CONTAGIOUS AND TOOK THE PRECAUTION OF KEEPING THE LITTLE GIRLS WHO FOUND HER IN QUARANTINE
HA-HA - I HAVE TO LAUGH - WE'RE NOT SICK - BUT WE'RE IN THE HOSPITAL
PLEASE DON'T LAFF, HANNA - MR. OLIVER WOULDN'T LIKE IT, IF HE HEARD US LAFFIN' IN HIS HOSPITAL
YOU KNOW, MR. OLIVER WAS AFRAID THAT WHEN WE FOUND THAT LITTLE GIRL UNCONSCIOUS ON THE HIGHWAY, SHE MIGHT HAVE SOME KINDA SICKNESS THAT WAS CONTAGIOUS -
THAT'S WHY WE'RE QUARANTINED HERE - 'CAUSE IF WE WENT OUT, WE MIGHT BE CARRYIN' SOME KINDA TERRIBLE GERM
HUH - I'M NOT SCARED OF GERMS - THEY'RE LITTLE BUGS SO SMALL YOU CAN'T EVEN SEE 'EM
WELL, EVEN SO - THEY'RE DANGEROUS - AN' I DON'T WANNA SEE ANY GERMS - EVEN IF I COULD SEE 'EM
DARRELL McCLURE 4-17
HONEST, I KINDA GOT THE WIM-WAMS, TOO - MR. OLIVER SEZ HE DON'T THINK THAT THE KIND OF FEVER THE LITTLE SICK GIRL HAS IS CONTAGIOUS -
BUT HE IS KEEPIN' US IN QUARANTINE, AS AN EXTRA PRECAUTION, EVEN IF WE AREN'T SICK - BUT IT'S NO FUN LIVIN' IN A HOSPITAL, EVEN WHEN YOU'RE TERRIBLE HEALTHY
BESIDES - I KEEP WORRYIN' 'BOUT MY VICTORY FARM - I KEEP THINKIN' MAYBE WEEDS OR SOME LITTLE BUGS WILL HURT MY CARROTS WHILE I'M NOT WATCHIN'
DON'T WORRY - THE SUPERVISOR, HIMSELF, IS WATCHING OUR FARMS, WHILE WE'RE IN QUARANTINE - YEAH - I KNOW MY FARM IS OKAY, BUT I KEEP WISHIN' I COULD LOOK AT IT - THEN I WOULD KNOW FOR SURE
